RENEW THAW INSANITY DUEL

Every effort of District-Attorney Jerome is being bent toward proving that Thaw's mind is as unsound to-day as it was when he killed the architect.

District Attorney, in Great Trial, Resumes Duel with Expert Evans, Who Says Slayer Knew No Wrong at Time of Tragedy.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 4.—When Harry K. Thaw fired the shots that killed Stanford White on the Madison Square Garden roof, eight months ago, he did not believe that he was doing any wrong, morally or legally.

That was the testimony given to-day by Dr. Britton D. Evans, the defence's expert on insanity, who took the stand for the fourth day of his cross-examination in the trial of the young millionaire for the Summer evening crime.

Insane Four Times in His Life.

The alienist having admitted that Thaw was insane at four periods in his life, but insisted that he is sane at the present time .the great fight of the District Attorney has been to break down Dr. Evans and make him say that Thaw is insane now. When the expert was called to the stand as soon as court opened to-day the District Attorney said that he had only a few more questions to ask him.

DID NOT THINK DEED WRONG.

Jerome took up Thaw's condition immediately after he had fired the shots that ended the architect's life. It had been testified that Thaw acted very coolly and the District Attorney wanted to know what that indicated as to the condition of his mind.

"The fact that he had made no effort to escape," said Dr. Evans, "would show that he did not believe that he had done anything that would cause him to shrink from the eyes of his fellowmen or the officers of the law."

The court room was crowded to-day, and hundreds who tried to get in failed. It was believed that Mrs. William Thaw would be called to the stand soon and an eagerness was shown to hear what the another of the accused young man would have to say in her effort to save her son.

Thaw walked into court at the usual time and took his seat. His smile was missing, and there was a rumple about his hair that was never noticeable before.

THOUGHT CRUSHED HIS SOUL.

Dr. Evans testified that Thaw's remarks after his arrest to the effect that White had ruined his wife and that he had saved the life of Evelyn indicated the thought that was uppermost in his mind at the time.

"I thought that kep oppressing him," explained Dr. Evans, "and that had crushed his very soul was uppermost in his mind, just as one who has may run through the mind of a person in a delirium of typhoid or any other fever.

"When he suffered the brainstorm he was unconscious just as all alike—he was unbalanced and not responsible for his act. He had been overwhelmed by the things he had been told and when he suddenly came face to face with the man whom he believed to be responsible there came an explosion. The same is ventilated by logical reasoning from delu at times what he would like to do the insane ones is forced to his act by a power urged on by delirious reasoning

EVANS ON STAND AS TRIAL IS RESUMED

NEW YORK, March 4.—Dr. Britton D. Evans resumed the witness chair at the resumption of the Thaw trial to-day Mr. Jerome:

Q.—Have you with you the records of your institution at Morris Plains, N. J.?

A.—Yes, sir.

The doctor went to the adjoining room to procure the records. He is suggesting dent of the State Insane Asylum at Morris Plains.

When he turned to the chair, Jerome asked:

SHIP SUBSIDY DIES WITH 59TH CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Fifty-Ninth Congress, declared by President Roosevelt and Speaker Cannon to be the greatest Congress in our history in connection with legislation for the people's interests, expired at noon to-day, and with it died the ship subsidy bill.

It was a characteristic Congressional demise. As the hour of noon approached the House gave itself up to song and mirth.

Reception to Cannon.

When Speaker Cannon brought down his gavel with a resonant whack and announced "It is all over, boys," the members apparently forgot that they were either Republicans or Democrats, and, rising to their feet, they sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." This song is always a part of the set programme when Congress adjourns, although to the galleries it seems spontaneous.

Then the members marched down the aisles to the rostrum, where the Speaker and Democratic leader, John Sharp Williams, held an informal reception. The handshaking fest though, the reporters in the press gallery were serenaded.

Over in the Senate adjournment was accomplished without quite so much hurrah, and in a manner more befitting the dignity of the upper branch of Congress.

Roosevelt at Capitol.

Two features of particular interest were the presence of President Roosevelt, who came down from the White House to sign enrolled bills, and the successful termination of the Democratic filibuster against the ship subsidy bill.

For a few hours before adjournment the President sat in the gorgeously decorated room set aside for that purpose and which he occupies but once a year, unconstitutionally attaching his name to bills and conversing with various senators.

Notwithstanding that the President was "turned down" on several of his pet measures, he is still of the opinion that it was the most important session of the national Legislature ever held.

During the life of the Fifty-Ninth Congress he secured the passage of the railroad rate bill, the pure food bill, the railroad hours of service bill, the measure prohibiting campaign contributions by national banks and corporations, the meat inspection bill and the law creating the new State of Oklahoma.

In the Senate there were offered 8,600 bills and in the House 26,000. Of these 416 became laws in the first session and 810 in the session that ended to-day. In addition to these laws the first session passed 3,573 private measures and the recent session 3,415 private measures.

It was with decks almost cleared that the House and Senate met at 9:30 o'clock. The House had only to agree to the conference report on the sundry civil appropriation bill already adopted by the Senate, and when that was done the last general supply bill was ready for the presidential signature.

Carmack Ready for Fray.

Both bodies had worked through Sunday and until late into the night. The Senate, with its Democratic filibuster on the ship subsidy bill, led by the brilliant Carmack of Tennessee, who retires to private life to-day was the attraction for hordes of visitors to-day. The House was kept busy wrangling over the hours of service bill.

The Senate agreed unanimously on the conference report on the bill limiting the hours of work of railroad employes. It was adopted by the House yesterday, and now needs the signature of the President. The bill provides for not more than sixteen hours' work for train crews and nine hours for railway telegraphers.

Carmack, Tennessee, in direct charge of the filibuster, was well supplied with munitions of war in the shape of public documents, and he was seeking the recognition of the Vice-President to continue the attack, when Gallinger, New Hampshire, in charge of the shipping bill, withdrew the measure.

Many Conclude Service.

Both House and Senate lose many picturesque and valuable members to-day.

Of those who are best known to the public the House loses General Grosvenor of Ohio, Littauer of New York, Lacey of Iowa and McCleary of Minnesota, the "stand patters."

Solons of the Senate who retire are Allee of Delaware, Berry of Arkansas, Clark of Montana, Dryden of New Jersey, Dubois of Idaho, Millard of Nebraska, Patterson of Colorado, Mallory of Oregon, Carmack of Tennessee, Blackburn of Kentucky and Spooner of Wisconsin, whose resignation yesterday came as a great surprise to his colleagues.

HE FEARED CONSUMPTION.

Richard J. Joyce of 761 Sixth St., East Cambridge, suffered as with a severe cold on the chest and began to fear consumption. Before John's medicine, however, says Mr. Joyce "and was surprised at the results, as my cough was cured and the danger past."—Advt.

Concord Banker in Interview Declares EDDY MILLIONS SAFE

Fred W. Ladd, Treasurer of Loan & Trust Savings Bank, Says Fortune Is Intact.

CONCORD, N. H., March 4.—The first official statement of the condition of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy's fortune ever made was given to the BOSTON AMERICAN to-day by the one man in Concord who is the best qualified to make it.

BY FRED W. LADD.

This is Fred W. Ladd, treasurer of the Loan and Trust Savings Bank. For years he has had charge of and has audited the accounts of Mrs. Eddy and of Calvin Frye. His statement throws the first light upon the real issue in the suit, the size of Mrs. Eddy's fortune and conditions surrounding it.

The statement follows.

"Mrs. Eddy is not wasting her money and she is not being robbed. As a private individual she probably will not be subjected to a receivership. It would be extraordinary, to say the least.

"Every Dollar Accounted For."

"Every dollar of Mrs. Eddy's fortune is strictly accounted for. It has been greatly overestimated. Her secretary, Calvin A. Frye, personally requested an audit several many years ago, and it has been continued to the present date. Every word that General Streeter hinted in his open statement is true.

"Regarding the suggestion that Secretary Frye does Mrs. Eddy's business, I can say that Mrs. Eddy personally sets apart a small sum for the requirement of Calvin A. Frye as agent, and he draws from it for the purpose of small expenses so as not to trouble Mrs. Eddy with little details. Mr. Frye's accounts are strict and show everything to the last ten cents. The account is usually $1,000 or so. Beyond this Mrs. Eddy draws all checks for personal account.

Of Remarkably Strong Mind.

"She has given $100,000 to the Concord Christian Science Church, a sum to the Old Ladies' Home, about $5,000 to the improvement of streets and a few thousands in other ways, besides helping her sons considerably and incidentally one or two other relatives a little. She is not influenced by any church or any person, but is of remarkably strong mind and will. If she has eccentricities, they are the mark of a strong mind, quite comprehensible to her and to those who know her best.

"Her only income is from her writings. These accounts are rendered by Mr. Armstrong of Boston. They are made with remarkable clearness and minuteness of detail. Mrs. Eddy personally looks these over and is in touch with every detail.

"Mrs. Eddy's advisers are honest and efficient. I am not a Christian Scientist. Yet I can see from my knowledge of her affairs that she has nothing to fear in the present exigency. Effort against her will be wasted."

Denying Church Leader Is Dupe of Coterie, Avers She Is Mentally Keen As Ever.

EDDY SUIT PLOT TO SPLIT CHURCH?

CONCORD, N. H., March 4.—Declaring that they are being persecuted because of their religious belief, the business members of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy held a conference to-day at which plans were made for defence against the charges brought by Mrs. Eddy's relatives.

Before night another conference will be held in Boston. This one will be attended by the attorneys for the defendants.

The question of the trust deed which Mrs. Eddy has made for the benefit of her relatives will be considered at the conference. The general impression among Christian Scientists here is that any provision which Mrs. Eddy has made for those of her relatives who have not joined in the legal attack will not be disturbed by the beginning of a suit by other relatives.

The men who went to Pleasant View on Friday declared that the attack which has been begun in the courts is not so much for the purpose of securing an accounting as it is for the purpose of persecuting Christian Science. They say it is part of a plan to split the Christian Science Church.

That the defendants in the suit are satisfied that the action has not been begun in good faith is shown by the statement which has been issued by General Frank S. Streeter, Mrs. Eddy's personal counsel.

This statement is as follows:

"Early Saturday morning I sent to Mrs. Eddy a copy of the bill in equity as published, but not yet served upon any of the defendants, so I am informed. I have since had a long personal conference with her, at which this proceeding and matters connected therewith were fully discussed. In common with her friends, she believes that the initiative in these proceedings were not taken by her son, or other relatives, but by others, who, in a markedly unusual manner and by unique methods, under guise of with all the other facts I believe he was of unsound mind.

Q.—The fact that he was walking slowly—would that enter into it? A.—The fact that he walked deliberately and that he made no effort to escape would show that he did not believe he had done anything that was wrong—that he did not believe that he had done anything that would cause him to shrink from the eyes of his fellow men or the officers of the law.

"Satisfied Over the Deed."

Q.—Then the acts would tend to indicate as he walked toward his wife that he considered that he felt satisfied over the deed, as if he had done something that was proper—that was the mental state of this man when he walked toward his wife after the shooting? A.—He showed no agitation according to the evidence as if he felt he had done nothing wrong. The fact that he walked toward his wife does not show conclusively that he did it by design, but I would infer that when he walked toward her he knew where he was going.

Q.—Do you draw the conclusion that he knew he was hitting toward his wife? A.—I cannot tell that.

Q.—When the fireman who took away the pistol asked the defendant "Why did you shoot Mr. White" and he answered "He ruined my wife"—does that throw any light on the mental condition of the defendant at the time? A.—Yes, it shows that the one thought that weighed down upon him for so long, that White had ruined his wife, was still with him at the time.

Q.—What mental process was going on in Thaw's mind at the time he said to his wife when she exclaimed, "Oh, Harry, why did you do it?" and he replied, "Well, dearie, I have saved your life. A.—It showed that that thought which was uppermost in his mind was still present with him.

"An Excuse for Crime."

Q.—Are you prepared to say that his reply to the fireman was not merely an excuse for his crime? A.—I was not present and I would not go so far as to say just what the defendant was thinking about.

Q.—A man named Paxton was there that night, and when Brindle, the fireman, had taken the pistol from Thaw and turned it over to him (Paxton) Thaw said, "I've got to go down the elevator, anyhow; can't you take me now. I don't want to annoy these people?" What mental process was going on at that time? A.—I cannot go so far as to say. It is impossible to determine positively what annoyance Thaw wanted to prevent. He might have believed he was causing an annoyance by obstructing the aisle in which he was standing.

Q.—Had the intelligence enough to determine what annoyance he was liable to subject the people to? A.—I can't determine that.

Q.—Did he know he was under arrest? A.—He knew he was to be taken by the man who had him in charge.

Q.—Did he know he was to custody? A.—Perhaps.

Q.—Do you think he had intelligence to know he was annoying people? A.—He may have had an insane perception that he was.

Unconscious of Surroundings.

Q.—Do insane persons not in a maniacal state usually know what they are doing? A.—They do. But when under the great strain, the agitation, they may have no idea of those who are around them. The chances are that for the time being they are almost entirely unconscious of the immediate surroundings.

Q.—Then after that he said to the policeman too, "I did it because he ruined my wife"—now does that throw any light upon his mental process at the time? A.—It shows that the central dominating thought was the great force behind his act. There had been at that time a reorganization of his mental forces.

Q.—So that if he had the brain storm at the time of the shooting, he had so reorganized his mental faculties that he was entirely in a different state when he made this statement to the fireman? A.—Yes; that is a very truthful explanation of what occurred. When he suffered the brain storm brain storms are not all alike, he was unbalanced and not responsible for his act. I am not in a position to say just what he was thinking about at the time. He had been overpinned by the things he had been told, and when he suddenly came face to face with the man whom he believed to be responsible there came an explosion. The sane man is restrained by logical reasoning from doing at times what he would like to do; the insane man is forced to his act by a power urged on by illogical reasoning.

Like One in Delirium.

Q.—Did he know he was attacking Stanford White? A.—He had an insane knowledge of the situation, yes.

Q.—He walked toward his wife with the pistol up and he said to Brandi, "He ruined my wife." That preceded any other statement we have considered. Does that not show he had sufficiently recovered to realize what he had done? A.—No. The thought that kept oppressing him and that had crushed his very soul was uppermost in his mind, just as one idea may run through the mind of a person in a delirium of typhoid or any other fever.

Q.—The facts that as they went down the elevator Thaw said "I did it because he ruined my wife," and that Mrs. Thaw said, "But look at the fix you are now in," and he answered "I know it, dearie, but I have probably saved your life," do these lead you to believe he knew he had shot Stanford White? A.—They lead me to infer that he knew something of importance had occurred. He might have known that from what had been said to him subsequent to the shooting.

Q.—The fact that the defendant directed someone to telephone to Mr. Carnegie—what light would that throw upon the condition of his mind? A.—Was he of such condition of mind when that he would have refused to submit to arrest if he thought that he had done nothing to justify arrest? A.—His actions in this particular respect throw no light upon his sanity at that time.

Alienist for Defence Resumes the Stand at Opening of Trial To-day.

other man.

Vance, the man about town, finds that the couple are living happily; but relying on his idea that "a woman forgives but never forgets," he calls at the Greatley home to try to win the wife back. Vance and Grantley meet. Here the playlet deviates greatly from the real tragedy. Instead of actually shooting his wife's traducer, Vance is made to die of apoplexy at the dramatic moment when Grantley is about to touch the trigger of a revolver he is holding near the other man's breast.

White Merely Laughed.

A sigh of relief escaped the audience when the curtain rapidly descended after Mrs. Grantley rushed into the room and her husband answered her frightened inquiry by saying:

"Yes, Kate, he is dead. There's nothing now in all the wide world that can ever bring harm to you."

George Broadhurst, author of "The Man of the Hour," now playing at the Savoy Theatre, sat next to Stanford White during the portrayal, which affected him deeply. Turning to the latter, Broadhurst said the prophetic words:

"Stan, that ought to be a warning to you."

But White merely laughed as he replied: "Oh, no; I don't believe I will ever go that way."

'HARRY SANE AFTER SHOT WHITE'--EVELYN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 4.—"Harry's madness vanished when he killed Stanford White."

That is the statement made to-day by Evelyn Nesbit Thaw through Lawyer Delphin M. Delmas in the presumption of the trial of Harry K. Thaw for the murder of White. It was called forth by the apparent abandonment of District Attorney Jerome's design to send Thaw to the electric chair. It is believed now that the only real fear of the defence is that he may be shut up in a madhouse.

"I am convinced," continued Evelyn Thaw, "that Harry is perfectly sane at the present time. I do not think he was ever mentally unsound except upon one subject. That was Stanford White. I told about that when I was on the stand.

SANE AFTER KILLING WHITE.

"I do not think that Harry was altogether sane when he thought of Stanford White. Whenever he saw him or talked with him after I had told him how White had treated me he acted awfully. But after White was out of the way, he became a changed man.

"Many a perfectly sane man would have his mind turned if he had to sit in court, charged with murder, and hear his mental condition handled the way it has been of late by District Attorney Jerome during the past few days. But Harry has shown absolutely no indication of insanity, and the notes he wrote indicate his sanity rather than anything else.

"When he became nervous through the awful strain one day last week, if his mind had given way he would have created a scene. But he simply asked to be excused for a few minutes, took a brief exercise and then returned to his chair—one of the sanest things that a nervous man could do.

"Harry is as sane as you or I," declared Judge Delmas, when asked what he thought of the actions of Thaw in court.

"I did object to some things, but I think I can safely say they will not occur again.

IMPULSE NOT INSANITY.

"Yes, I have heard that Thaw drew a sketch of Mrs. Evelyn Thaw and gave it to a newspaper man for reproduction, and I consider that in questionable taste, considering everything.

"But, suppose every person who acts on impulse and too impulsive turns out to be in bad taste, should he be judged insane?

"Harry Thaw has done a good many rather spectacular things in his life, and should say that he rather enjoys that sort of thing. And because of these other things which people would never in the world have called the acts of an insane man if the homicide had not occurred, and because of the plea that Harry Thaw was acting under an insane impulse at that time, people are staring at him now and making out that everything he does is the act of an insane man.

WHITE LAUGHED AT WARNING IN PLAY

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, March 4.—Stanford White was not killed without warning. While the architect had not been told that Harry K. Thaw was going to slay him, he had received a warning nevertheless.

It happened in the Lamb's Club. Every year this club gives a vegetation ball, which is known as the "Lamb's Gambol."

It was at the gambol preceding the tragedy that Stanford White received his warning.

Robert Hilliard was playing the part of James Grantley, a New York business man, in a one-act play entitled "As a Man Sows," which was written by Campbell McCulloch. The scene is laid in a handsome home on Riverside Drive.

If the author had been acquainted with all the incidents leading up to the Thaw-White tragedy, as told in Evelyn Nesbit Thaw's testimony on the witness stand, he could not have written a more faithful story of it than he did in "As a Man Sows."

No Barrier to Love.

Briefly stated, the action of the playlet deals with a man-about-town who has mistreated a young girl and then cast her off. Later she falls in love with a wealthy young man—James Grantley—who asks her to marry him. She declines, until he has heard her terrible story, which proves no barrier to Grantley's love, although it inspires in him a deep hatred for the other man.

Vance, the man-about-town, finds that the couple are living happily; but relying on his idea that "a woman forgives but never forgets," he calls at the Grantley home to try to win the wife back. Vance and Grantley meet. Here the playlet deviates greatly from the real tragedy. Instead of actually shooting his wife's traducer, Vance is made to die of apoplexy at the dramatic moment when Grantley is about to touch the trigger of a revolver he is holding near the other man's breast.

NEW DUMA GATHERS TO FIGHT CZAR

ST. PETERSBURG, March 4.—Almost from the moment of the convening of the new Duma to-morrow are expected clashes between the deputies and the government of a more serious nature than those which led to the dissolution of the last Parliament.

The spirit being manifested by the deputies on leaving home for St. Petersburg clearly indicates the bold course they will take.

Great crowds gathered at the railway stations to say farewell to the deputies. The feature of these demonstrations was the great display, without stint, of red flags and the fiery speeches by the deputies. In many instances great bouquets of red roses were presented to the Duma members, and revolutionary literature was openly distributed.

For the most part the police made no effort to check the revolutionary demonstrations. Minor clashes occurred at a few points, due to local governors trying to prevent the deputies from making speeches.

ECZEMA 15 YEARS WITHOUT RELIEF

Friend Recommended Cuticura—Uses Five Cakes Cuticura Soap and Two Boxes of Cuticura Ointment and is Entirely Cured—Feels Like New Man.

GLADLY RECOMMENDS CUTICURA TO ALL

"I have had eczema for over fifteen years, and have tried all sorts of remedies to relieve me, but without avail. I stated my case to one of my friends and he recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I bought them with the thought that they would be unsuccessful as with the others. But after using them for a few weeks I noticed to my surprise that the irritation and peeling of the skin gradually decreased, and finally, after using five cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment it disappeared entirely. I feel now like a new man, and I would gladly recommend these remedies to all who are afflicted with skin diseases." David Blum, Box A, Bedford Station, N. Y., Nov. 6, 1905."

Little Son Had Eczema

"My son when four years of age had eczema on his body and limbs and suffered badly. Cuticura Remedies were recommended to me and I gave the complete treatment a trial and at the end of the third month my son was cured. I cannot say too much in praise of Cuticura Remedies and am always ready to recommend them to others. Mrs. G. H. Conant, Box 811, Rockland, Mass., Dec. 14, 1905."

Helpless Infants cured of Torturing, Disfiguring Humors, Eczemas, Tetters, Rashes, Itchings and Irritations, owe more to Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment than to all other remedies combined. No others so pure, so sweet, so speedily effective. May be used from birth.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humor of Infants, Children, and Adults consists of Cuticura Soap (25c.) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c.) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Resolvent Pills (25c. in the form of Chocolate Coated Tablets, 50c. per vial) to Purify the Blood, of Throughout the World. PRETTY BABY CONTEST HITS POPULAR FANCY

The Boston Sunday American's Competition Jumps at Once Into Popular Favor.

PRIZES ARE WORTH WHILE

Studios That Will Honor $10 Awards in Baby Contest

Prizes of ten dollars' worth of photographs will be honored in the BOSTON AMERICAN Baby Contest at the following studios.

Chickering, No. 21 West street.
Purdy, No. 146 Tremont street.
Notman, No. 3 Park street.
Marceau, No. 160 Tremont street.
Glines, No. 523 Washington st.
Bissonnette, No. 1,150 Columbus avenue.

With the publication yesterday of five pictures of pretty Boston babies the great contest started by the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN to find out who has the prettiest baby in Greater Boston Boston was fairly begun.

Enthusiasm beyond all expectation has been aroused over this novel and most interesting contest for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is going to pay $1,500 to find the prettiest baby in this great city.

Photographs are being received by the hundreds by the Baby Contest Editor of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, and all sorts of inquiries are being written and 'phoned to the office. Never before has any newspaper contest rapped right at the doors to the hearts of the people as has this interesting struggle among food mothers, fathers and guardians of little ones to determine who among them all has the prettiest baby in Greater Boston.

Means Much for Baby's Future.

The prize of $500 for the winner of the contest, placed to a savings bank for him or her, to stay there until the little heir is eighteen years old, and drawing interest all of the time, means a great deal for baby's substantial future.

Then the special prize of $100 for the best photograph of mother and baby taken together is something worth while, for $100 is $100, and that will do a great deal for baby and mother.

Then the $10 worth of photographs taken at one of the best photographic studios in Boston for every little chap or girlie whose picture is published in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is a prize worth securing. One hundred prizes of $10 worth each of photographs are to be given away, or $1,000 in all, in the course of this contest.

Names of Judges Increase Interest.

Enthusiasm in the contest was all the greater when folks learned the names of the judges who were to debate upon the merits of the little contestants. The fact that each one of the five women who are to decide as to the pretty race is an artist of world-wide celebrity and has made every one feel that the contest is one which is fair and that the prettiest baby will, indeed, be the winner.

When it is known that Mrs. Henry H. Kitson, Miss Jean Oliver, Miss Sallie Cross, Miss Mary Macomber and Mrs. Emily Selinger have gladly accepted the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN to act as judges in the great contest everyone may well feel assured that the award will be made in fact as well as in fact to the prettiest baby in Greater Boston.

Among queries received by the Baby Contest Editor of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, some have asked if more than one photograph of a little contestant and those showing the baby in different poses may be sent and whether they will be judged. Indeed, they will be; the more good pictures of your baby you send the better will the judges be able to pass upon the merits of your little one.

Every Photo Will Be Returned.

Another thing—every picture received in this office will be carefully kept until the end of the contest that the judges may finally pass upon all, and then after the award has been made they will be mailed back to those who have sent them to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

Another query is whether portraits of a baby which was under five years of age when the pictures were taken, but who is now over five, may be entered in the contest. No, every baby competing for a prize must be not over five years of age now.

Parents or guardians are earnestly advised to write plainly the name and age and address of the baby entered in the contest, as well as their own names and addresses. This must be remembered, it is very important. To forget or neglect this might lose baby the race.

ARCHIE ROOSEVELT, STRICKEN WITH DIPHTHERIA, ISOLATED IN WAR ROOM

Under Surgeon General Rixey's Care, President's Youngest Son Shows Improvement.

Copyright by Francis B. Johnson.

Archie Roosevelt, who is ill of diphtheria at White House.

President's youngest son on back of his favorite pony.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Archie Roosevelt, the President's youngest son, who is suffering from diphtheria, is today reported by his physician and nurses to be doing very well. He passed a good night in his sick room at the White House, during the Spanish-American War known as "the war room." The war room is completely isolated from the wing of the mansion in the White House.

Surgeon-General Rixey, the President's physician, said today that no had been first called in to see Archie until Friday, and he at once took extraordinary measures and began treatment.

Caught It at School.

The President is concerned and he is taking Archie's illness philosophically. He is assured that the disease is being grappled with the best and most scientific method. The President rode his horseback officially until yesterday, when Secretary Loeb issued the official bulletin. At the same time he stated that the disease was confined to a distant corner of the White House, and that no difference would be made in the regular transaction of business in the President's offices.

At White House.

The real quarantine in the White House extends to the "war room" and its approaches. In a building so large as this the health officials do not consider it necessary to isolate any great portion of it.

Only once before in its history has the White House been under a quarantine. That was in 1892-1893 when Mariaon Harrison, President Harrison's grandaughter had diphtheria. At that time the President's offices were in the White House proper and on the same floor as the sick rooms, hence no general callers were received for some days by President Harrison.

SPOONER QUITS SENATE; 'CAN'T AFFORD IT,' HE SAYS

Noted Wisconsin Statesman Sends Letter of Resignation to Governor Davidson.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Senator Spooner of Wisconsin has sent a letter to Governor Davidson offering his resignation as senator of the United States to take effect May 1, next.

The Senator's action caused great surprise, when it became known, and Mr. Spooner was at once besieged with inquiries as to its cause.

To all he replied that his mind was fully made up. He had formed, he said, that he could not afford to remain in the Senate since it would require a sacrifice on his part that he could not justify himself in making. He said he would resume his practice of the law, but declined to say whether or not he would locate in Wisconsin.

He did say, however, that he would continue to be a citizen of that State as long as he lived.

Vice President Fairbanks was one of the first men to be made acquainted with Mr. Spooner's decision before he wrote his letter. The knowledge came to him through the personal confidence of the Senator, but the senator made no official communication on the subject to either the Senate or its presiding officer. The law does not require that a resigning Senator should do more than Mr. Spooner has done, but some Senators who have resigned have given notice to the Senate.

On being told of Senator Spooner's resignation the President made this statement:

"I cannot sufficiently express my regret at Senator Spooner's resignation. We lose one of the ablest, most efficient, most fearless and most upright public servants that the nation has. Four years ago I knew the extreme reluctance with which Senator Spooner finally consented to serve in the Senate, and year by year since I have feared that he would resign, as he finally has resigned, for I know that every year of his stay in public life has been to him a direct financial loss which he could but ill afford.

"I understand fully the Senator's feeling that he cannot longer stay in the public service at such cost, not only to himself, but to his family, and much that I regret his resignation, I can most sincerely congratulate him upon his ability to serve so long. He has been in his life a gallant soldier, a trained public servant of the highest standard of ability and faithfulness, and at all times an American citizen who did his whole duty."

TEACHERS' WAR ROUSES TOWN

Special to the Boston American.

SWAMPSCOTT, March 4.—Indignation is at the highest pitch and practically the whole town is up in arms against continued discrimination by the school board against local applicants for positions in the Swampscott schools. The feeling has been accentuated by the annulment today that the board had denied the application of Miss Florence Bulfinch as teacher of drawing.

Miss Bulfinch, who is the daughter of H. Cushing Bulfinch, a prominent citizen of this town, is a graduate of the Swampscott High School, and is about to complete a four years' term at the Normal Art School, Boston. She has been refused the position in favor of Miss Helen L. Varney of Hamilton.

Her failure to get the desired position is attributed to one member of the school board, Miss Eleanor Holden.

DRAPER'S MAN GLAD HE IS OUT

Democratic State Committee Can't Raise Enough Cash to Suit Him.

WORCESTER, March 4.—William D. Leahy, the ousted secretary of the Democratic State committee, tells the Worcester Telegram that he did not give the members of the committee his real reasons for acceding to the suggestion that it would be wise for him to tender his resignation.

Mr. Leahy was seen by the reporter at his home in Milford and talked so freely to the representative of the biggest Republican paper in Worcester County that it got the story on the first page with the biggest headlines in the outfit. He is referred to as the "personal admirer of Hon. Eben S. Draper, Hopedale."

The story says Leahy is "thoroughly disgusted with the actions of the managers of the Democratic party in Massachusetts and glad to know that he is once more under no obligations to this political body."

He says if the nominees of the party this Fall do not suit him he will not support them.

Believes in Hold-Up Game.

Making it plain that he believes in the game that holds up the public service corporations for contributions, Leahy delivers himself of the following criticism of little members of the present State committee:

"They are not like the Democratic leaders of five or ten years ago, who could go out and raise funds for campaign work.

I doubt if the present members could raise but a few thousand dollars. They seem to be composed of men who live near Boston and want to get their names into the newspapers.

"Another reason why I resigned from the committee is that my views on important political questions are not like theirs, and if I remained with them it would be but a short time before there would be a rumpus.

Dislikes Moran and Brown.

"There are sixty members on the State Democratic Committee, of which only twenty-five were at the meeting yesterday. The majority of the committee is owned and controlled by John B. Moran and Eugene Brown. If I had remained on the committee as its secretary and Moran and Brown were nominated again this Fall as standard bearers of the Democratic party, I surely would have resigned. I will not serve on a committee with those two politicians at the head of the party. Brown is all mouth.

"It looks as though Moran and Brown will be the leaders of the Democratic party at the Fall Democratic Convention, although it is not certain."

MANUFACTURERS TO FORCE A LOCKOUT?

Special to the Boston American.

BROCKTON, March 4.—Among labor leaders it is known today that the moment a move is made by any of the shoe operatives unless redress for grievances that have made for higher wages, the owners of most of the factories in Brockton will lock out their employes. By operatives and manufacturers it is considered doubtful if a strike can be avoided, but the optimistic are not quite ready to force the manufacturers to show their hand.

Unless an answer to the demand for higher wages made on the manufacturers by Lasters' Union is received to-night, a committee will be appointed to interview the manufacturers to-morrow. Agent Thomas B. Hickey of the Lasters' Union says that organization is anxious to avoid a strike, but the time has come when the manufacturers must definitely state what they are going to do.

Cutters to Refuse Offer.

At a meeting of the Manufacturers' Association Saturday night it was decided to offer the cutters a piece price, to go into effect at once, but this offer, officials of the cutters union say, will not be accepted. The cutters have been asking for $3 a day and a working day of eight hours. Now they are paid $2.50 and work nine hours.

Labor leaders say today that, if the manufacturers do not do something about the demands of the lasters, finishers and skivers, the Joint Shoe Council will take up the matter.

Ex-Governor William L. Douglas, in a recent telegram to the South, said that he considered that the manufacturers have taken the proper stand in this matter, and, despite a promise he made during his campaign for Governor in 1904, that his factories would always be union shops, it is felt that he will abide by any action that is taken by the other manufacturers.

Labor Men Divided.

Labor men are divided just now over the recent election of general officers of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, over which there arose a dispute which has been carried into the Massachusetts Supreme Court, and until this case is settled the strike may be held off. The case is that of Thomas B. Hickey of Brockton, who hopes the decision of the court will force him to the presidency, which is now held by John F. Tobin, and of Charles A. Morrison of Lynn, who believes that he and not Collis Lovell of St. Louis was elected general vice president.

In the fight between the shoeworkers and the manufacturers Mr. Tobin is with the manufacturers and Mr. Hickey with the operatives.

To-night lasters, skivers and cutters will have meetings to-night, at which action on the wage demands will be taken.

INCENDIARIES FIRE BLOCK IN LEOMINSTER

Special to the Boston American.

LEOMINSTER, March 4.—The old risk block, a two-story wooden building on the south side of Monument square and Pleasant street, was set on fire by incendiaries, the police believe, and damaged to the extent of $2,000.

The building was to be torn down today by its owner, the Union Book Company of Boston, to make way for a twelve-tenement block.

Until recently there had been eleven tenements in the block and all but four had moved.

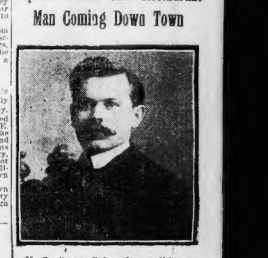
New Restaurant on Bromfield Street

Popular South End Restaurant Man Coming Down Town



U. S. Grant Cole, the well-known and popular restaurant man, at 1449 to 1455 Washington street, South End, has purchased the Crystal Spa, running from 45 Bromfield street through to 13 Bosworth street, and has changed it from a lunch room to a first-class restaurant. This location has long needed just such a place as Mr. Cole intends conducting there. Mr. Cole says that it will be his aim to please the public of that now restaurant and judging from the large number of people that patronize his South End restaurant (over one thousand daily), there is no doubt but that he will be equally successful in his new dining room.

When asked to what he attributed his marvellous success in places where so many others have failed, Mr. Cole said: "I attribute my success to my thorough knowledge of all branches of the business and to studying the wants of my patrons and giving strict attention to business. I served in every capacity of the business and had thoroughly mastered all branches of it before I started out for myself. Most people start all right in opening a restaurant and get the crowd coming. Then they get careless, and one by one their patrons drop away. It has always been my aim to try to continually improve my service, and to this fact I attribute my great success in places where so many others have made failures."

Mr. Cole has served in some of the best hotels and restaurants in New England, having worked four years at the Quincy House, Boston, four in the Adams House, and the knowledge gained in these hotels, he thinks, has been a great help to him in the conducting of his own restaurants. He thinks that he will be able to please any patron and that it is a compliment to patronize his new place, and extends a cordial invitation to his friends as well as the public in general, to give his new dining room a trial.

Old-time newspaper men will be glad to learn that Mr. Cole has opened a place down town, as his able management of one of the large restaurants in Newspaper Row, some years ago, is remembered with pleasure.

"INGRATITUDE OF SON RENDS MRS. EDDY'S HEART"

Declares Mother in Her Love Blames Influences Behind Him for Bringing Suit.

Former Congressman Baker Declares That Christian Science Leader Has Always Been and Is Good to Only Child.

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., March 4.—The following, by assistance, was given the BOSTON AMERICAN by a relative of Mary Baker Eddy whose home is in New Hampshire's capital, not far from Congressman Henry M. Baker. His residence is in Bow, N. H., while he also maintains a Washington home, to which he goes, where he is a lawyer and real estate owner. He said:

"Mrs. Eddy not only transacts her own affairs, but does it with extraordinary keenness and ability. She is a woman of remarkable power and of forgiving nature, as I will show in this connection, if you have patience. Mrs. Eddy believes that reason, instead of superstition or nature, is being unduly influenced by other minds to a danger that is shameful and unwarranted.

"These mental manipulations" continued he, "as said to have been exercised upon the men who have gained ascendency over her son's mental faculties.

"I said to her while calling Friday morning: 'Let not your heart be troubled,' and she replied, 'God has always been good to me, and I know that this will come out all right.' Mrs. Eddy will not be greatly disturbed by the situation, for she will have power of legal right of advice and assistance if she requires it. Mrs. Eddy has done much for her son and was doing more—is doing more, while he is personally blinded to be misled.

"Paid for Son's Place."

"She paid for his place in Lead, Dak., building him a house and giving him the deed. Since then she has given him financial assistance. Yes, even to saving Sunday taxes on the place, that he had allowed to run. And yet when in Washington recently, with his daughter, the son was not too poor to put up at the Ebbitt and to have photos made of an expensive sort by one of the leading photographers of the city. The sum was not slimdowed by decimation.

Mr. Tomlinson did go to Dakota, at the request of Mrs. Eddy, to ascertain if her son was really unwell, as reported.

"Mrs. Eddy knows very many details of her business as I do of mine. Not a dollar of her money is paid or withdrawn from the bank except by her own act. She signs all checks and knows every detail of her affairs.

"One day recently she sent for me to come and examine certain papers, and I complied. She looked the papers through and asked me three questions that got at the kernel of the matter as closely as the keenest lawyer could.

"I was astounded that any lay woman should display such ability.

$300,000 His Estimate.

"As she sat and talks she presently seizes a pencil, her writing pad, and holding it upon her knee dashes off what she has to say.

"And Mrs. Eddy wants things done promptly and exhibits great executive ability.

"I do not deny or affirm that she made a true deed to her son, for that is not in my province to discuss or know. I do not believe that she has, I merely guess, but she is honestly, and I guess fairly, wealthy, that she would still have $150,000 if she needed $25,000 to give her son.

"Mrs. Eddy feels bodily over her son's action. She has been said to be ailing. Ingratitude always cuts deeply.

"For six times the amount of influence behind her son, and feels sure he would never have taken action in this case without some influence.

"I am not going to me for advice, knowing the situation as I do, I should not advise him to resort to disorderly tactics openly, with his daughter, the son was not too poor to put up at the Ebbitt and to have photos made.

"I am not her enemy, nor was I ever. I have been asked by Mrs. Eddy to serve well of her. I never heard anything evil about her that I did not refute."

MISS MARY BAKER GLOVER.
Granddaughter of Mrs. Eddy, who seeks share in millions of church leader.

NEVER THREATENED BY GLOVER--KENNEDY

In reply to George W. Glover's published statement that he went to the office of Richard Kennedy, whom he says was doing business as a lawyer, and fired a pistol at his head and threatened to shoot him like a mad dog if he continued to use his "black arts against" his mother, Mrs. Mary Eddy, Mr. Kennedy said last night at his apartments at the Bristol:

"If Mr. Glover ever did all that I must have been asleep. I never saw the man to know him in my life.

"Glover will never succeed in getting that estate," he continued. "His mother is now a very old woman, and I think she has built up a corporate body around herself in connection with the church that will keep through. She is a remarkable woman.

"I am not her enemy, nor was I ever. I have been asked by Mrs. Eddy to serve well of her. I never heard anything evil about her that I did not refute."

NOT WORRIED OVER FEES, SAY LAWYERS

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., March 4.—Of all the statements in Mrs. Eddy's reply to the petition of her son and others, filed here by General Streeter last night, the one embodied in the last paragraph was regarded by the few who saw it here last night as probably the most important. It was interpreted as the final decision to hit back at former United States Senator Chandler, Judge Mason W. Proctor of this city, and Attorney Edward J. Howe, and the other lawyers acting for the petitioners in bringing the subject before the American Bar Association for discussion and comment on the ground that they incited the action by Glover and the other petitioners to serve ulterior purposes.

To what it is believed the lawyers and the other relatives of Mrs. Eddy are employing the eminent array of counsel whose names are attached as attorneys of record to their petitions is a question that they are much too poor for that, and as to suit for damages or money payment of any kind is contemplated, the Senator and Judge Proctor have declared, the question of fees loses.

In connection with this phase of the case interesting cases, the following has been current since last night and has been discussed by the lawyers. The possibility of additional suits being instituted by Glover or his counsel in which they will endeavor to get at those defendants who do not reside within the state, and who, it is said, are now being discussed. Such extensive legal action would, it is believed, result in a fee for Mr. Martin was asked:

"Will you help be costly?"

"Are Mr. Glover and his fellow petitioners rich men?" he replied.

"Not at all," he replied. "They are very poor."

Then who is defraying the cost of all this litigation and paying the fees that the fees of a great lawyer like Senator Chandler?

Mr. Martin hesitated a moment and then said: "I suppose that is going to be the answer that question, do you? If we are interested, I don't think the public ought to worry over that point."

'MRS. EDDY WILLING TO PART WITH BOY'

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., March 4.—Miss Lucy W. Cheney, an old New Hampshire resident who knew Mrs. Eddy when she was the wife of Dr. Patterson and before, and who knew Mrs. Eddy's son to live with them, says she is now more than ever convinced that Mrs. Eddy and her daughter are a sham since Mrs. Eddy is accredited with saying her son was removed from her keeping by a plot.

"It is preposterous," said Miss Cheney to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter, "and without a semblance of foundation in truth.

"I am too old to remember dates, but the incidents are in general very clear in my mind.

"My uncle, Russell Cheney, of Grotoon, N. H., married Sarah Smith, who became his second wife Miss Mahala Sanborn, of Tilton, or Sanbornton, as it was then called.

"Mahala Sanborn and been a neighbor of Mary Baker Eddy's from childhood. She loved him and the boy loved her.

"It was generally felt that the mother of now the celebrated Mrs. Eddy, regarded the lad as a companion for her daughter, and was very willing to part with him.

"So when Mahala Sanborn left Tilton she wife of my uncle, Russell Cheney, she took to her home in Concord the boy, Mary Baker Glover's boy. He was called George Washington Glover Cheney.

Satisfactory to All.

"The arrangement was entirely satisfactory to all concerned.

"To show you further that this is so Mary Baker Glover came to live in Groveton for quite a space, where she saw her own boy in the home of my uncle as often as she saw other children of the village.

"Not only did the mother give no special attention to her own flesh and blood resulting in my uncle's family's having a special liking for another child in the place, of no relation to her, and to whom named after her family.

"If further proof is wanted, let me state that one of the last acts of my uncle and wife before going West, was to ask Mrs. Eddy to take him to the home of his natural mother, now Mrs. Eddy, that his mother

TO FORCE STARTLING SECRETS FROM FRYE, SAYS PEABODY

The most persistent enemy of Christian Science that Mrs. Eddy and her followers have ever encountered is Frederick W. Peabody, the Boston attorney, who lives at No. 18 120 worth avenue, Cambridge.

Through pamphlets, before legislative committees and in magazine articles, as well as by his conduct of the famous libel suit of Woodbury vs. Eddy, in which he was counsel for the plaintiff, Mrs. Josephine Woodbury, has Mr. Peabody attacked Mrs. Eddy and the Christian Science propositions.

Yesterday Mr. Peabody finds himself in the position of being an attorney for Mrs. Eddy through having been engaged by Mrs. Eddy's personal representative of the interests of George W. Glover, and in this capacity he handled the work of obtaining the depositions of all witnesses in this case. What he will do when called to testify.

Before this case is completed," said Mr. Peabody, "it is my opinion that Calvin Frye, the private secretary of Mrs. Eddy, will be compelled to make important disclosures.

"It is all coming out. The light of day is beginning to shed its rays into the very depths of the most gigantic conspiracy in Christendom. Why, here is a woman who has all along claimed that one person can fix his mind upon another and murder him. She has been quoting when a law would be enacted punishing such a crime. What preceding. What opportunity for insanity expert.

"In a word, sane, who says that her husband died of arsenical poison, mentally administered."

MRS. EDDY DOESN'T KNOW OF HER SON'S ACT, FARLOW SAYS

Alfred Farlow, president of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, who had just returned from Concord, said last night that Mrs. Eddy had not been told of her son's action. "It was thought best not to bother her," he said. Mr. Farlow said he thought Mrs. Eddy's personal property might be worth $850,000, while the funds of the church amount to about $15,000,000.

"It is natural that a proceeding of this kind should be regarded in the light of an attack, but no attempt will be made at retaliation, neither will any attempt be made to force matters or in do anything to embarrass Gen. Streeter, who, undoubtedly no effect upon the members of the church. On the contrary, they appear to have taken no interest whatever in the case. The members of the church are bothering their heads about it at all, and to have the defendants placed in a light sensational.

"We do not know whether Mrs. Eddy would personally appear in court in the event of the case coming to trial. If you put yourself in her place you would probably reason that you would not care to go to court unless you were compelled.

"We really don't know much about the church funds. I suppose it is all deposited in the name of the church or in the name of the treasurer, Stephen Chace of Fall River. I do not know where the funds are on deposit now.

"As to the mother church itself, I do not think it has any fabulous amount in it. The services are free, the pews are open, and the income is not large in proportion. We follow the rule of Christ's apostles. I believe, besides, that members are expected to give what they will.

"$150,000 GIFT DEED THE PRICE FOR THE LETTERS"

Special to the Boston American.

CONCORD, N. H., March 4.—That paragraph in Mrs. Eddy's reply, through General Streeter, to the prayer for a receiver, which says there has been signed a deed of trust bestowing $150,000 on Glover and his family, was interpreted, by reason of its non-consultation characters, as an admission that such a deed is in existence. In fact, certain legal members of the anti-Eddy camp here last night declared positively that such an instrument had been completed by Mrs. Eddy last Friday, just thirty minutes after the petition for a receivership for her estate had been filed.

"But it will not affect our case in any way," said one of these lawyers, "and she will have to pay out the $150,000 to Glover just the same. You see, we know the deed has been executed. The notary or justice of the peace before whom it was attested is only one of the man witnesses we can call to prove its existence.

"The $150,000 is the price the coterie surrounding Mrs. Eddy are willing and anxious to pay for the letters from Mrs. Eddy that Glover has in his possession. They are making the most strenuous efforts to obtain every letter written by Mrs. Eddy in the last thirty years, but especially those bearing recent dates.

"By means of these it is believed we can prove that Mrs. Eddy's former splendid vigor has suffered the impairment which comes naturally with old age.

"The proof of that fact, the men around the titular head of the Christian Science Church know, would inflict irreparable damage on their institution."

"Mrs. Eddy Frye's Puppet."

It was the influence of the sycophantic power of Calvin A. Frye that wrought this swift change in my aunt. This man had suddenly risen from servant to master. I found that Pleasant View and all it contained were literally in his power.

"By bitter experience I learned that to all intents and purposes—even then, years ago—my aunt was virtually Frye's puppet and prisoner. No letters could reach her save through his hands; no person could see her save by his consent; no writing came from her pen save by his approval."—*Statement of George W. Gives Instant Relief

Minard's Liniment was prescribed by Dr. Levi Minard in his own practice fifty years ago. It is the most effective, economical, and clean-to-use external application for rheumatism, neuralgia, pleurisy, stiff, twisted joints, sore, strained, or lame muscles, tired, aching feet, any pain or ache, as well as for throat and lung troubles and as a general family medicine. So pure and antiseptic, a powerful penetrating, and soothing. Minard's Liniment has justly earned its title, King of Pain.

CURED THIS MAN Will Cure You

"Accept my heartfelt thanks on behalf of my aged father, who for the past six months has been severely troubled with rheumatism in his left arm, so much so that he could no longer work as his tailoring profession, and after consulting the leading specialists of this city, and trying enough so-called remedies to sink a boat, we finally made up our mind that he was a hopeless invalid. I can truthfully assert the fact that my father's paralyzed arm regained its full vigor and it is to-day as well as it ever was, after using Minard's Liniment.—Francis N. Spicola, 88 Penn St., Providence, R. I."

SAY SUIT IS PLOT TO SPLIT CHURCH

Mind Not Impaired.

"From my conversation with her at this time and on other recent occasions I am able to speak definitely and positively. Her clearness of mind and resolution of purpose have been in no respect impaired by her advanced years. Her capacity to think clearly and to deal accurately and justly with important business affairs has never been more perfectly demonstrated in her conferences and dealings, which in the last two weeks and in numerous business letters in her own handwriting, which I have received from her during that time.

"The amount of Mrs. Eddy's property has been grossly multiplied by rumor and unfounded public report. She is possessed of a large wealth, as the term is used. Mrs. Eddy receives no income from church or publications connected with the church. Her sole income for many years has been from the copyrights on her own books and the amount from this source has been grossly over-estimated.

"Mrs. Eddy's business affairs have been managed by herself, with the aid of Mr. Frye, her devoted and loyal servant, and under the oversight and personal audit of another gentleman, whose name has not been mentioned but who stands for all that is honorable and of good repute in financial circles in Concord. Accurate accounts of all her property and investments as well as of her income and expenditures, have been carefully kept and frequently audited.

Hold Nothing in Trust.

"The last audit was in October, 1906. None of the defendants named, except Mr. Frye, have any connection with the management of her property or investments, or have any knowledge whatever in reference thereto, nor have any of said defendants ever received any property of Mrs. Eddy's which they hold in trust or otherwise, except in one instance of no relatives.

"Inquiry has been made whether the various defendants would accept service of the proceeding. I could say as to that. With my partner, Mr. Allen Hollis, I am counsel for Mrs. Eddy now. While the defendants would undoubtedly be guided largely by Mrs. Eddy's wishes, we expect, as in these proceedings, I cannot, appear legal representative, undertake to speak for them.

"With reference to the report that within a few days Mrs. Eddy has placed in the hand of trustees a large amount of money to be held and used for the benefit of her son and her grandchildren, I have nothing to say. Whatever disposition she may have done toward providing for her family is a matter which might not for the present to be discussed by us.

"It is obvious that I might not to talk about the legal aspects of the case while what would be the course of the proceedings so far as Mrs. Eddy is concerned. The proceedings are unusual. So far as I know can be considered a regular proceeding in equity, it seems to be an attempt to have the personal rights and privileges of a citizen adjudicated in a way unprovided for in New Hampshire practice, as I am aware, and if it shall appear that these proceedings have been instituted for purposes other than the assignment and protection of the plaintiff's legal rights, the method of dealing with such a case would be carefully considered by Mrs. Eddy's counsel before making our public statement.

BENNETT FACES PRISON TERM FOR 'PERSONALS'

Trial of New York Herald Proprietor Starts To-day as Result of "Red Light" Crusade Against Paper.

Boston American Issued Writ.

NEW YORK, March 4.—James Gordon Bennett, owner of the New York Herald, and Ely M. Gilliss, its advertising counsel, and the New York Herald Company, a corporation, are called for trial to-day in the United States Circuit Court.

The indictments charge the defendants with having defied federal laws designed to protect the purity of the mails by publishing and circulating a "red light" personal column in the New York Herald. Both individuals and the corporation are indicted on eight felony charges for violating section No. 3,893 of the Federal Statutes, which prohibits the mailing of improper matter. A severe penalty is prescribed on conviction—a fine of not more than $5,000 or five years imprisonment or both on each count.

Might Get 40 Years in Prison.

If convicted on all eight counts, the extreme penalty that could be meted out to Mr. Bennett and Mr. Gilliss would be forty years in prison and a fine of $40,000 each. The New York Herald Company might be fined $40,000.

The government is represented in the trial to-day by United States District Attorney Henry L. Stimson, assisted by Assistant United States District Attorney Lewis O'Brien, the new head of the Criminal Department of the United States District Attorney's office. The defence of the New York Herald has been retained by former Assistant District Attorney William Rand and former Assistant United States Attorney Joseph Dunlop.

Defendants' Stubborn Fight.

Every available influence, political and otherwise, has been exerted to save the New York Herald and its owner from answering for the crimes of the "personal," every legal point in the preliminary prosecution has been stubbornly contested.

The indictments were found on October 4 by a Federal Grand Jury. Proceedings previously begun against the New York Herald Company, in a city magistrate's court in violation of the State law were dismissed by Magistrate Wahle, who incidentally scolded the New York Herald from the bench, and who strongly recommended that District Attorney Jerome proceed against the individuals responsible for the "Red Light Personal" crimes.

On October 22, after failing to obtain further delay, the defendants pleaded not guilty to the indictments. Their attorneys then prepared an elaborate demurrer to the indictments, which was not sustained by the United States Court, and they have been forced to trial.

The case has had Mr. Stimson's personal attention, and would have been called some time ago, had it not been for the extensive prosecution of railroads for criminal rebating, which occupied both the courts and the United States Attorney's staff.

Like Joseph R. Dunlop's Case.

The only similar case in recent years in which a powerful daily newspaper has been summoned to trial for circulating obscene matter through the mails, is that of Joseph R. Dunlop of the Chicago Dispatch. The two cases have no end of points in common. Dunlop was convicted of publishing and circulating indecommitte "personal" advertisements—no evidence was contributed both that which the Government is said to have obtained against the Herald.

Dunlop was defended by able criminal lawyers, but was speedily convicted. Appeals to higher courts availed him nothing and he was sentenced to serve two years in Joliet Prison and to pay a heavy fine. His newspaper was ruined as a result of the conviction.

Although the exact text of the indictments against James Gordon Bennett, Mr Gilliss and the New York Herald Company is withheld by United States Attorney Stimson, their substance is known. Much of the proof of the charges is carried in the text of the indictments in the form of "personals" which are declared to be obscene on their face, and which are taken from various issues of the New York Herald. Many of them are more than the personals which convicted Dunlop.

Copyright Issues as Proof.

In this Dunlop case the hardest fight made by his attorneys was over proof that the particular issues had been mailed. This proof seems are in the indictments against the New York Herald, as it was furnished by no less an authority than the Librarian of Congress at Washington, a sworn copies of the various issues were mailed.

Although the color of the personal has been going on for years, the charges on which Mr. Bennett and his associates will now be brought to trial go back only to January 14, 1905, issue No. 25,316.

CARRIE NATION IN RAGE, RAPS SPEAKER COLE

Cyclonic Western Saloon Smasher Threatens to Dissect State's "Bad Laws."

MAY "RAID" STATE HOUSE

Special to the Boston American.

WORCESTER, March 4.—Declaring that if Speaker Cole does not answer her letter at once she will go to Boston and address the Legislature, speaker or no speaker, Carrie Nation delivered a scathing arraignment on cigarettes, Masonic legislators and liquor to-day in a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter.

Carrie is mad, hopping mad, at Speaker Cole because he did not fall over himself in accepting her proposal to come to Boston and talk to the Legislature on cigarettes, saloons and bad lawmakers.

"I'm going to Boston myself, if Speaker doesn't answer the letter I wrote inquiring for an invitation to address our local and General Court," she said. "I told him I would speak on 'Law versus anarchy.'"

Lawmakers, Anarchists.

"I just want the chance to tell our legislators that many of them are no Anarchists than they are law-abiding citizens.

"I have seen the cigarette fiendish habits followed with Representative Hugh J. O'Rourke of your city. I endorse his cigarette bill. I think that O'Rourke of Lynn have both seen the same cigarette before them.

"Oh, it's awful, awful! I'd just like to show the cigarette fiendish to Speaker Cole and the members of your Legislature. I want to tell your Legislature that it must pass O'Rourke's anti-cigarette bill.

"The cigarette fiendish is worse than a whiskey fiendish. It takes more time to kill a man or make him crazy, but it ends its work as well, and the job is pretty good when it is done.

Worse Than Murderers.

"Any person who sells a cigarette is worse than a murderer, and the men who manufacture them are worse than the men who sell them. The persons who smoke cigarettes are just the same sort of case as horse thieves.

"I want to talk to the Legislature of Massachusetts about rum drinking. The need a talk from me on this and on many other subjects. They need to be stirred up, and I'm the woman who can do it.

"To-morrow afternoon Mrs. Nation is to make a public address on temperance at Lyric Theatre, and in the evening she is being invited to speak before the Worcester Reform Club.

Her speeches at the Lyric this week were listened to by crowded houses. She delivered speeches on temperance before the fourth and fifth acts of the play.

EXPERT CALLED BY STROTHERS TURNS TO STATE

Alienist Whose Answer Displeased Defence Is Snapped Up by Prosecution.

WON'T AFFECT VERDICT

CULPEPER, Va., March 3.—Before the trial of the Strother brothers resumed to-day, comes around the appearance of the state of Dr. J. S. Deliker, superintendent of the Eastern State Hospital for the Insane at Staunton, Va., called by the prosecution to rebut the testimony of the alienist introduced by the defence. It is said he was originally called to the witness stand but after a consultation here was excused for the defendants he was recalled.

This is taken by many to mean that the defence was not pleased with Dr. Deliker's answer to the hypothetical question prepared to be offered when the alienist took the stand. The prosecution learned of the arrival of Dr. Deliker and his return to Staunton and this yesterday to send for him as a witness for the State. Dr. Deliker accepted the invitation and his testimony is expected to aid the cause of the State materially on the point of insanity.

It is not thought by many, however, that expert testimony of any kind or nature will have any direct effect upon the verdict. The defence has secured the jury it aimed at, through the introduction of the question of insanity in the absence of the strongest kind of defence, and is conceded by those in a position to know that it was to bring a legal peg upon which to hang a verdict of justification under the law written into the statutes of Virginia.

McCORMICK STARTS FOR U. S.

PARIS, March 4.—Ambassador Cyrus H. McCormick started yesterday for the United States. Many French state officials, as well as a number from the American colony, were at the railway station to bid him farewell.

3 BOYS DROWN WHEN ICE RAFT OVERTURNS

With a huge ice cake for a raft, three Cambridge lads, Patrick Murphy, Charles Poindexter and James Bennett were having a gay time yesterday afternoon, when without warning their improvised raft overturned and they were hurled headforemost into the Charles River to fill watery graves.

The boys had been playing with a number of their friends around the water's edge at what is termed Magazine beach, nearly all the afternoon, floating cakes of ice from the piled up mass along shore. Finally they succeeded in disengaging a cake larger than the rest, and as it floated slowly away Murphy, Poindexter and Bennett jumped aboard, and, waving their hats to their chums, started on their journey to their death.

The bodies have not yet been recovered.

Young Murphy was ten years of age, and lived at No. 25 Kenwood street. Poindexter was fourteen and lived at No. 220 Allston street, and the third member of the unfortunate party, Bennett, was twelve years old and lived at No. 14 Kenwood street.

MISSING CLERK PROMISES TO RETURN CASH

Since the receipt of a letter, written from Chicago, from Samuel Levi, the confidential clerk of Wolf Maskowitch, of No. 6 Salem street, who disappeared Saturday with $75 in checks and cash belonging to his employer, in which he says that he is returning the checks and will send the balance of $152 in cash as soon as possible, the police have dropped the case.

Saturday Maskowitch reported to the police that his cash box had been robbed of his bank book and $75.2 in checks and cash. Levi lived on Eastern avenue, Malden. He was married and had six children. Formerly the latter owned a fish business now conducted by Maskowitch. When the father died he left the business and a considerable sum of money to his son. The son sold the business to Maskowitch and became the latter's confidential clerk. It is reported that Levi has had bad luck this Winter. He has suffered with the grip for months and consequently with it reported financial reverses is given as the cause of his absconding. It is said that the family in Malden are in straitened circumstances.

GIRL RAN AWAY TO BE SERVANT

NEWTON, March 4.—After a search had been made for her in several cities Miss Grace Savage, a pretty 18-year-old New Bedford girl who disappeared ten days ago, was found in this city yesterday by the police.

For several days she had been working as a domestic for a prominent Auburndale family, whose name the police withhold. She told the police she had run away to see some of the world.

THOMAS B. ALDRICH MUCH BETTER TO-DAY

Thomas Bailey Aldrich, who has been confined at the Homoeopathic Hospital for the past five weeks, seriously ill, suffered a slight rise of temperature yesterday. The doctors attending him say, however, that this is not serious. The noted author's wife who gave up her home on Mt. Vernon street, to be with her husband during his illness, was at his bedside all day yesterday. This morning his condition is much improved.

SAVED WIFE BY SEA-TRAINING

Mrs. Edward H. Perkins, the invalid wife of Edward H. Perkins, who was borne from a fourth story window at the $50,000 fire in the new Spaulding block in Lynn Saturday night, is the morning confined to her bed as the result of her terrible experience. Mr. Perkins is also in bed as a result of his experience of Saturday night.

When seen to-day by a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN, Mr. Perkins said:

"I have my eighteen years of life as a sailor to thank for the saving of my wife's life and my own. Saturday night, I have sailed all around the globe and have served in every position on shipboard from cabin boy to master. It was a simple matter for me to lower my wife by means of a rope and then follow down the same rope."

RETAIN PENSION AGENCIES.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The Senate and House, after a joint conference, yesterday ratified the compromise pension bill. All pension agencies are retained.

Greater Boston Leads the World in Electrical Equipment and with Edison Electric Power at your door manufacture your goods better and cheaper than can your competitors elsewhere who have no such advantage at their command.

A cheap power supply will be absolutely assured you at any hour of the day or night—
Cheap (1) because of a schedule of prices accurately commensurate with cost—
Assured (2) because of the large separate central power houses.
Assured (3) because of heavy coal reserves (The Edison coal mine right in Boston).
Assured (4) because of proper investment in copper distribution mains and feeders.

A large production means low cost. Boston's consumption of electricity per capita exceeds that of all other cities. This means low prices and satisfactory service to the consumer. It is the highest testimonial we can show a manufacturer contemplating a change in location or the establishment of a new factory or branch factory.

The Boston Edison lines cover so much territory that whether the locator desires a city plant, or his business is best adapted to suburban manufacturing, he can get exactly the location he requires in an urban and country district covering 412 square miles. The suburban territory has behind its service the same high class equipment as is to be found in Boston, and this service is the best in the world.

We stand ready to furnish prices on factory sites or rentals with full particulars in any of the following cities or towns, all located within the Company's territory: Boston, South Boston, East Boston, Roxbury, West Roxbury, Dorchester, Neponset, Mattapan, Dedham, Dover, Westwood, Needham, Highlandville, East Milton, Milton, Canton, Sharon, Walpole, Ashland, Framingham, South Framingham, Sherborn, Holliston, Saxonville, Natick, South Natick, Wayland, Medway, Bellingham, Millis, Norfolk, Medfield, West Somerville, Somerville, Arlington, Winchester, Woburn, Stoneham, Hopkinton and ——

Our schedule of rates will be sent anywhere. The advantages of its prices will be self-evident. It is the only complete price list on electricity published in any city in the United States. Under it there is no favoritism or discrimination. The use which determines the cost strictly governs the price. The schedule of prices is right, and this is attested by Boston using more electricity per capita than any other city.

We send representatives fully equipped with information anywhere in the Eastern, Central or Seaboard States.

A large corps of experienced men, engineers, illuminating experts and solicitors stand ready to immediately give information, advice or investigate any complaint of prospective and present customers. We are anxious not alone to get your business but to hold it. A pleased customer means ten.

A GIRL'S REVERIE

by Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Mother says, "Be in no hurry,
Marriage oft means care and worry."

Auntie says, with manner grave,
"Wife is synonym for slave."

Father asks, in tones commanding,
"How does Bradstreet rate his standing?"

Sister, crooning to her twins,
Sighs, "With marriage care begins."

Grandma, near life's closing days,
Murmurs "Sweet are girlhood's ways."

Maud, twice widowed ("sod and grass"),
Looks at me and moans "Alas!"

They are six, and I am one.
Life for me has just begun.

They are older, calmer, wiser,
Age should aye be youth's adviser.

They must know---and yet, dear me,
When in Harry's eyes I see

All the world of love there burning---
On my six advisers turning,

I make answer, "Oh, but Harry
Is not like most men who marry.

"Fate has offered me a prize,
Life with love means Paradise.

"Life without it is not worth
All the foolish joys of earth."

So in spite of all they say
I shall name the wedding day.

American Women "Slouchy," Says This Horrid Man

EVERY little while the women of America find out all about themselves. They read it in a book published by some Englishman or Frenchman or other foreigner who comes over to this side on a voyage of discovery and who, failing to attract notice in any other manner, writes a book. They all do it; they choose the American woman for a subject because the American woman is so unlike the women of their own country. When the foreigner understands not at all—that's why he writes.

But it has remained until now for an American to write a book criticising the American woman. He comes from Chicago, and from the University of Chicago, of course. From that institution there has emanated more stush of one sort and another than from all the rest of the institutions of learning in the country put together.

Professor J. Laurence Laughlin is the creature's name. He is of the political economy department of the university of kerosene and dollars. He objects to the American woman. Not any particular case, from any particular city or State, but to American women in general.

"The American women are living much in a state of slouchiness in dress, manners, study, intellect and language. What we need is a sense of form. It is something that is very scarce among American people. It is the rarest sense there is in this country. Just look at the way women walk on the street and stage.

"The wiggling, swaying movements have made the true rhythm of all Europe, English, French and German women walk with some dignity, but the young American women have a glide and wiggle that is unique and undignified.

"There you are. And there's what J. Laurence Laughlin, who pays his name in the middle, thinks of us.

They say that the Chicago women are up in arms against Professor J. Laurence. Confederate feeling has been aroused, and the only grain of comfort they find is the fact that the professor puts the boy on all women, not Chicagoans alone.

It seems to me that Professor Laughlin might have been in better business than criticising women. I am inclined to think, then does.

A PRETTY TUCKED BLOUSE

No. 5,643.—The dainty simple blouse is one of the prettiest of the season's styles. It is specially becoming, but particularly suitable for a young girl. The tucks are laid in groups and have additional fulness in front, which is arranged in a box plait. The vest effect makes a quaint little affair, affording a chance for the display of handwork, or a pretty design in lace or embroidery. The sleeves are in the prevailing style, full at the shoulder and close from elbow to wrist. A deep cuff is finished in white China silk, and the collar is of narrow Valenciennes insertion, several rows of which are also used to trim the blouse. The pattern is cut in 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

For 36 inches bust measure the blouse will require 2 3-4 yards of material 27 inches wide, 2 1-4 yards 36 inches wide or 1 1-2 yards 44 inches wide. The pattern, 5643, is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure, and will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps. NOBBIEST OF NEW JACKETS FOR EARLY SPRING WEAR

Striking Design Is One of Season's Novelties

HERE is a brand new design for a Spring jacket that presents many charming novelties in design and construction.

The face cloth is responsible for its expression, a pale mushroom shade having, perhaps, the first place; but the charms of a white plush jacket can by no wise be forgotten, and certainly this design would prove quite suitable for one.

On the little inner vest a delicate embroidery is introduced, and appears again in the sleeves, which, by the by, reach just below the elbow. The jacket itself is cut very low in the front, crossing, indeed, only some four inches or more above the waist, and a narrow pointed collar forms a pretty finish to the neck. On this collar a touch of velvet in a deeper but contrasting shade to the coat, is introduced with excellent effect.

The velvet of the jacket rests on the cuff of the basque, a touch that finds its echo in the pointed epaulettes which grace the sleeves. The basque is, naturally, purely a matter of cut, and so its arrangement is no source of difficulty in the making.

Now for a word or two as to the construction of the jacket. To begin with, the back is cut on the usual lines, but with this important difference that no seam occurs in the immediate centre. By this means one of the points of the basque falls just in the middle, an unbroken fold of the cloth lying straight down to the point to the extreme edge of the point.

The centre of the narrow vest is laid on a straight fold of the material. Regood this the fastening of the coat is quite usual, two sets of loops each side contributing their quota to its success, while the front is made perfectly tight fitting, or practically so, by the placing of one very skilfully modelled dart.

For stitching nothing answers the purpose so well as the orthodox tailor's canvas. Woe be to the work of any amateur who tries any substitute for this!

The sleeves are full size as an interlining to the fronts themselves, running so far back as the darts, but not being included in it; and, again, all round the edge of the basque, where it must be used to the depth of some three inches or so, and is cut on the cross, while as a foundation to the square collar it is indispensable.

One other detail of the making is the introduction of a strip of good firm linen lines down the opening of the fronts on each coat and vest. A very important detail is this, for without it the fronting more or less cut on the cross, would in time stretch and "sag" out of all recognition in front.

The thrifty housewife buys now the things that she will need another season and pays not more than half what she would were she to delay buying until she actually needs them.

Don't be afraid of the procession, but follow the advice given below for Tuesday's sales:

MACDONNELL'S will sell 30 pairs of elbow length black taffeta gloves, fleece-lined, at 59 cents; good value at $1. Also 124 pairs black plaque kid gloves, eight-but ton length, at $1.39; regular price $2.50. Both sales at 12 o'clock Tuesday.

TIMOTHY SMITH CO. are selling 80-cent double-coated agateware rice ladlers, 24c quart, 25 cents, and other agateware cooking utensils at proportionately reduced prices. They are also offering for 25 cents apiece 40-cent quality clothes baskets, large size, made from best grade and nicely finished. New and stylish-ish tooth-cutting length, in tan, black and brown, worth $3.50 positively, to-morrow only $1.98. Also a number of men's Spring weight underwears, high neck, long sleeved sleeves, 25-cent quality for 12½ cents.

GEORGE E. PLUMMER & CO. offer a lot of short corset coats, fitting, for $5 apiece. The values of these coats have been $10, $12.50 and $15. The corset coat holds 14 Spring styles, and this is a real bargain.

MEYER JONASSON & CO. will offer an extra good value in eleven separate skirts in fine panama and grey mixtures for $5.50. The former prices of these skirts were $8.50, $6 and $7. They will also put on sale a small lot of Japanese silk Peter Pan waists, with large polka dots and other designs, offering $5 values for $1.99 to-morrow only.

A. SHUMAN CO. will have a special sale of girls' regulation sailor suits, made of fine herringbone cheviot, blouses nicely embroidered and braided. The skirt is full kilted, kills one inch and a half apart. An ever ready seller at $7.50; tomorrow for $5.

O'CALLAGHAN'S will put on special sale a lot of voile Eton suits, made with a silk drop skirt, navy blues and blacks; one of the most stylish and exclusive suits produced this season. They will find $55 line, to-morrow reduced to $25.

R. H. WHITE CO. will have in the basement Limoges china bowls in assorted tints, with gold and fruit decorations, for 39 cents. These are 75-cent values, and are a bargain to be considered with the approach of the school season.

HOUGHTON & DUTTON will sell 85-cent comb and brush trays for 49 cents; 25-cent Japanese china hair receivers for 24 cents; 25-cent French china cups and saucers, with gold floral decorations, for 19 cents, and 50-cent real china jelly jars, with plate, decorated and tinted, for 39 cents. This is an unusual chance to get a number of good bargains at the same time and in the same place.

BUTLER'S have an exceptional value in a long glove, finest quality, real suede finish, two clasps, in white, black and tan, worth $2.50 positively, to-morrow only $1.98. Also a number of men's Spring weight underwears, high neck, long sleeved sleeves, 25-cent quality for 12½ cents.

At What Age Does the Average Woman Appear at Her Best

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

AT what age is woman at her best?

If you asked a man that question he would unhesitatingly name the age (as near as he could guess it) of the woman in whom he chanced to be most interested at that moment.

As far as men are concerned woman is at her best age when she most attracts them.

As far as women are concerned, she is at her best age when she gives them most sympathy and most rivalry.

You will hear a woman of thirty say when speaking of a friend who is forty, "Mary is at the most charming age, so well poised and rounded."

The truth is that there is no general "best age" for any woman. It is absolutely a question of individuality. One woman may reach her zenith of charm at twenty, and thereafter steadily decline into the hopelessly commonplace, while another may grow each year more attractive until, at forty-five, she is the quintessence of charm.

Ninon de L'Enclos, that most charming of all charming women, was as irresistible at eighty as at eighteen. So it would be hard to decide at what age she excelled all others.

Some women don't "wake up" until they are in the thirties, and certainly you no woman who is as yet asleep to the wonders and beauties of life can be at her best.

Occasionally you see a girl who, until she is, say, twenty-five, gives the greatest promise of charm and individuality. Then, perhaps, she marries, and, presto! she sinks into the most uninteresting of women.

If the man who moved heaven and earth to win her had it to do all over again he would not be even casually attracted.

Then, again, take the girl who all through her girlhood and early womanhood is that most pathetic of sights, a wallflower. She is not pretty enough to attract callow youth and old age, nor vivacious enough to attract marriageable men.

Suddenly, at about thirty, she "comes to her own." She is more sure of herself, has lost her self-consciousness and blossoms into an intelligent charm that brings men to her side as bees to a flower.

In the March number of Cosmopolitan Elizabeth Mertwether Gilmer writes on the question of woman's age in the most charmingly comprehensive way.

It is a question that is of interest to woman because every woman hopes that her present age is her most attractive and best age.

If is of interest to man because—well, because man seems to find woman more or less interesting at any age from the cradle to the grave.

Can you tell if you are at your best age or not? Do you regretfully feel that you have left it behind you? Are you at it now, or are you working hastily toward it day by day?

A good woman's best age means a wonderfully fine thing, my dears.

It means intelligence, charm, wisdom and content. Read the article in the Cosmopolitan and see where you stand

APPLE DESSERT

STEW ten large apples soft with one cup of water and strain; add one cup of sugar and one teaspoon of lemon, one tea spoon of salt and the yolks of four eggs well beaten. Put this mixture into a well-buttered pudding dish and bake twenty minutes in quick oven. Beat the whites of eggs to a stiff froth, add two spoons of powdered sugar. Spread this over the hot pudding and return to the oven for few minutes to brown.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

The Inquiry Balked

[illegible] ing, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner.

ABOUT 2 o'clock on the following day the inquest was held on the body of Raymond Thurston, but for lack of evidence the inquiry was adjourned for a week. Dr. Peard, in describing the injuries, testified that the deceased had been shot through the neck, the bullet severing the great arteries, but whether suicide or murder had been self-inflicted or otherwise there was not a bit of evidence of any kind whatsoever.

The weapon found beside the dead man's hand was a six-chambered revolver, one of the chambers of which had been discharged, and from the position of Geoffrey Thurston it appeared that this revolver had belonged to the deceased, a fact which complicated the mystery still further.

Murder or manslaughter? Accident or suicide? These were the serious questions to which no satisfactory reply was forthcoming.

Save for Monica Peard's evidence, as to the discovery of the body in the painting room, and the evidence of the broken-hearted parents, as to their son's last words to them on that fatal night, there was no information whatever to be gained which bore directly or indirectly upon the extraordinary mystery.

Mrs. Thurston had informed her parents that he was about to retire to his own room before going to bed; and the smoking apparatus was found unfastened on the following morning, although the housemaid distinctly remembered having fastened it on the previous evening before the discovery of Raymond Thurston's death.

Why?

From circumstantial evidence, then, it appeared that Raymond must have killed himself by way of this window that night, making his receiver with him.

But why had he gone to the studio—and why armed with a revolver? And what was the meaning of Ruth Pritchard's mysterious assertion that night? Had there been an appointed meeting in the studio between Ruth and the deceased?

Alas! to this question at least there seemed to be no possibility of obtaining a reply. Ruth Pritchard's state was hopeless. She lay in her bed quiet, motionless, speechless, lifeless, apparently, save for a faint respiration alone.

Every possible means known to science was employed in the effort to rouse the girl from this death trance, and all in vain. Electrical stimulation, artificial respiration, injections of salt, the strongest nerve and heart stimulants—all alike were found wholly ineffective.

Strenuous if the were questioned and told to squeeze the hand of the questioner for an affirmative answer, or to close her eyes when she understood the question, something could be gleaned from her," the coroner suggested.

And this suggestion was carried out with no satisfactory result. Ruth Pritchard seemed to be perfectly incapable of even the slight movement of the fingers. Her hands were limp and powerless—when lifted a little and released they fell to her side like the hands of a corpse.

Sylvia Thurston was altogether unable to appear at the inquest. By Dr. Peard's strictest orders she remained in bed that day, and while the coroner's inquiry was proceeding Sylvia tossed from side to side of her pillows, sometimes raving aloud, sometimes muttering softly to herself, sometimes rising suddenly on her elbow and gazing vacantly toward the door, as she said, wistfully:

"Where is Raymond? Has he arrived yet? Why does he not come to see me?"

Dr. Peard had sent to Cleveland for a nurse—Martha Jenner, a homely, kind-hearted woman—to look after Sylvia and Ruth; and Mrs. Jenner shook her head and compressed her lips as she listened to Sylvia's delirious words.

Scant Evidence

"God help her when she knows all!" Martha Jenner said, some days after attending the rector's words of the previous evening. By the time the scant evidence had been heard the shadows of twilight were gathering in the room of death, and the coroner suggested an adjournment of the inquest for a week, pending further evidence bearing on the mysterious mortality.

This girl, Ruth Pritchard, may have recovered the use of her speech by that time," the coroner said, "and on her evidence probably the entire issue of the inquiry will depend. All the circumstances seem to indicate that Ruth Pritchard and the deceased met in the painting room that night for what purpose and with what result we have yet to discover.

"Until this girl's explanation of her absence from Mooreombe on the night of the tragedy is in our possession, gentlemen, we shall have nothing to work on but the merest conjecture."

The coroner and the jury immediately withdrew, and the police set to work to discover some clew to the mystery of Raymond Thurston's death, and in this inquiry they were assisted by a clever detective, who arrived from Cleveland on the morning following the opening of the inquest.

On that same day—a day of storm and rain—the remains of the deceased were interred in the family vault of the Thurstons, and immediately after the funeral an old-fashioned carriage rolled up the avenue of Mooreombe, and Dr. Mueller alighted at the door.

He looked pale and haggard, and he leaned heavily on his stick, as a minute later he entered the darkened death room where Mrs. Thurston and Monica Peard sat together, while Monica was exerting every means in her power to console the afflicted mother. Carl Mueller drew a chair close to Mrs. Thurston's and began to talk to her, in a low, compassionate voice.

"And how is Sylvia since morning?" he said presently.

He has come to Mooreombe an hour before the funeral procession had started that morning and had had a few words with Martha Jenner with regard to her patient's state.

"She seems to me to be somewhat calmer, Dr. Mueller," Monica Peard took it upon herself to answer, for she wished to spare Mrs. Thurston the unnecessary pain of talking on any such subject that day. "And I dread that calmness. It means that Sylvia's mind is becoming clear and rational again; it also means that the full truth as to Raymond's death is about to burst upon her. And I tremble for the result although that moment must come.

"I wish she could be taken out of this house altogether for the present," Mueller said, after a pause. "If she were under your roof, Miss Peard, it seems to me that she would have a better chance of fighting against this sorrow. Here everything her eyes rest on will remind her of her last communion—and of the days that are gone forever."

"I only wish she could come to me, Dr. Mueller. I have been thinking of this very thing myself. If Sylvia could be removed from this very day—before she realized what has happened——"

LEAGUE BACKS CLANCY FOR MILFORD ASSESSOR

Stands for Equitable Assessment and Against Discrimination—C. L. U. Secretary 11 Terms.

MILFORD, March 4—To-day the voters of Milford are electing their town officers for another year. Great interest is being taken in the choice of the assessors and four members of the labor unions, Democrats, Independence Leaguers and many Republicans are combining to place William F. Clancy on the board. He is on the Citizens' ticket and stands for an equitable and fair assessment of all properties and against the discrimination which has been shown some taxpayers in the past.

Mr. Clancy is one of the best known and most progressive young men of the town. He is a product of the Milford schools and after serving his eleventh term as secretary of the Central Labor Union, he is an expert bookkeeper. He has taken a lively interest in town affairs and thoroughly familiar with every section of Milford and because of his knowledge of the Italian language he was appointed special census enumerator for the Federal government in 1900.

Citizens generally who desire a more up-to-date system in the work of the assessing board are urging the election of Mr. Clancy. Special efforts are also being made to re-elect Selectmen Edward J. Mahon and to laud Dr. George E. Cooke on the Board of Selectmen.

BIG STEAMER ON TOKIO ROCKS

YOKOHAMA, March 4—The steamship Dakota went ashore in the Bay of Tokio last night. All passengers are safe, but the vessel is leaking freely, and it is feared that refloating her will be difficult. The vessel struck a rock.

Agents of the steamship, who were sent to Omitsuru to arrange for salvage, are returning this afternoon with passengers and mails and details of the accident.

The Dakota is a vessel of 13,308 net tons. She was built in New London, Ct., in 1905. Her dimensions are: Length, 622 feet; breadth, 73.5 feet, and depth, 41.2 feet.

POWERS PLOT TO GET TURKEY

BERLIN, March 4—An Anglo-French-Italian scheme for the partial partition of the Ottoman Empire on the Sultan's death is revealed to-day by the newspaper Welt. A part of the plan is to override Germany's interest participating in the division.

"The scheme is for England to seize the western portion of Arabia from the Mediterranean to the Indian Ocean, converting the Red Sea into an English preserve. France is to take Syria and Palestine, and the other parts of Asia Minor, Tripoli and Albania are to be Italy's share.

The three powers mentioned are accused of trying to induce Russia and Austria to act with them.

ROUTINE FOR GRAND JURY

The Grand Jury for the March term of court reported this morning and received a few short instructions from Judge Brown in Superior Criminal Court. None but routine cases are to be taken up as far known as yet. The judge instructed the jurymen briefly as to their duties and they were then dismissed to their room.

WINTHROP GIRL MISSING; MAY BE IN BOSTON

Guardian of Nellie Taylor Thinks She Is Held In Charitable Institution.

POLICE SEARCHING CITY

Spurred to action by the mystery surrounding the absence from home of pretty Nellie Taylor, the seventeen-year-old Winthrop girl, the Boston police are trying to unravel the peculiar circumstances in the case.

The girl left home Saturday morning for Hingham Falls, N. H. She was to return at 4:30 p. m. the same day. When she did not arrive, her guardian, Robert N. Chapman, proprietor of the New Winthrop Hotel, grew anxious. Then he received a telephone message from an unknown woman. "Nellie is safe and happy and will stay," was what he heard over the wire.

The fact that the girl that day had told in some Boston charitable institution against her wishes, but have failed to find any traces of her. Mr. Chapman, the girl's guardian, is aiding the police in their search.

"Nellie had no love affair," said Mr. Chapman.

BOATS CRASH OFF DOVER, ENG. EIGHT DROWN

DOVER, Eng., March 4—The German steamers Marsala and Helene have collided in the fog, and eight of the crew were drowned when the Helene sank.

The steamer Vaderland, Antwerp for New York, is ashore on Goodwin Sands, and three or four other vessels are also reported to be aground at the same place.

Off Reedy Head the German steamer Ragnilo, bound from Baltimore for Hamburg, ran down the Danish bark Thesia, the crew of which was rescued.

King Edward's departure for the continent to-morrow will be delayed.

20,000 SWEEP FRISCO DEBRIS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4.—The first organized San Francisco street cleaning brought out yesterday 20,000 men and 3,500 wagons, and after eight hours of work most of the business streets in the burned district were swept clean and the earth carried away in wagons. There were too many sweepers for the wagons, however.

The work was thoroughly organized and absolutely voluntary. Business men brought their clerks, and contractors sent men and teams, while hundreds of society women managed thirty refreshment stations where food and coffee, fruit and cigars were given away to the workers. Even those arrested for drunkenness Saturday night were spreaded into service and cleaned the street in front of the municipal offices.

SCORE BRYCE AT MASS MEETING

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Ambassador Bryce, the British government and all friends of an Anglo-American alliance are severely criticised in resolutions adopted in a mass meeting held here in honor of the one hundred and twenty-ninth birthday anniversary of Robert Emmet.

"We warn the American people," say the resolutions, "that James Bryce is coming to America for the special purpose of effecting an alliance with England that has for its immediate object war with Germany and the price of Chamberlain's rubber gold in Ireland, India and South Africa."

One of the speakers characterized the new British Ambassador as "a traducer of the Irish character and a calumniator who is sent to this country for that purpose."

PASTOR REBUKES SPRINGFIELD POLICE

SPRINGFIELD, March 4.—Rev. Dr. Frank L. Goodspeed made stinging criticism of the police department for not closing illegal resorts in a sermon in the First Congregational Church last night.

KIDNEY TROUBLES

MISS KATE A. HEARN

The kidneys are essential organs for keeping the body free from impurities. If they should fail to work death would ensue in very short time.

Inflammation or irritation caused by some feminine derangement may spread to some extent to the Kidneys and affect them. The cause can be so far removed by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that the trouble will disappear.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, swelling of the limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

It may be the means of saving her life. Read what this medicine did for Kate A. Hearn, 520 West 47th Street, New York, who writes—Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"I owe a debt of gratitude to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for it has saved my life. I suffered with Kidney trouble, irregularities and painful periods, and my blood was fast turning to water. I used your medicine for some time and is has made me strong and well."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made from native roots and herbs cures Female Complaints, such as Falling and Displacements, and Organic Diseases. Dissolves and expels Tumors at an early stage. It strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility and Invigorates the whole system. For derangement of the Kidneys in either sex Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 4.—Manager "Chick" Stahl opened up a big box of new balls this morning, and, tossing them to his players, told them to go to work. In this manner the first practice of the season was indulged in by the Boston American Baseball Club. The new manager has laid out his preliminary campaign as follows:

9:45 a. m.—Board the trolley car in front of the hotel and ride to the ball park, two miles away.

12 noon—Return for dinner.

1:45 p. m.—Take car again for the ball park.

4:15 p. m.—Return to hotel for supper.

The ball grounds are two miles or so from the center of Little Rock civilization, and Stahl will not require any of the players to hoof it unless a player is so disposed. All day Sunday the members of the squad were bragging about how they were going to run to the park, and it was feared that the special car would not be required, except for McGreevey and Cahill, the fans, and the newspaper men, but it was noticed that when the car stopped in front of the hotel there was a scramble on the part of the players to see who would get aboard first, and when they begin to get sore and tired after a hard practice, it is to be feared that the scramble to get aboard will resemble a stampede. The players put in a very quiet Sunday. The squad arrived at 6 o'clock on Sunday morning, and, after breakfast had settled, there was a rush for the bathrooms, which were very welcome after the long run from New York, pleasant though the trip was in many ways. The wind-up of the journey will long be remembered by those who have never before travelled from St. Louis to Little Rock.

Did you ever take an upper over the Iron Mountain railroad from the Mound City to the capital of Arkansas?

No; well, never go that way if the engineer has any lost time to make up. You feel like the tail of a kite when the train is rounding curves on a down grade. However, it's all over, though the boys were shivering all day Sunday over the recollection of that furious ride.

Stahl Has Plenty of Troubles of His Own.

Manager Stahl has his troubles. All day Sunday he worried because his layout of balls and uniforms had not arrived, but he cheered up late last night when he was notified of their arrival. The fact that two of the kid players had failed to bring an old uniform disgusted the new manager, and he vented his spleen by relating how the youngsters had to "toe the mark when they first broke into the big league."

"Unglaub says he needs a pair of stockings and a cap," snorted Chick. "Well, let him buy some ten-cent socks and a five-cent cap. That's what I had to do when I first worked for Boden and Conant."

A busy newspaper photographer was snapping a few players as they sprawled around in chairs in front of the hotel.

"By the way, Mr. Stahl, who are those three men I just photographed?

The new manager turned to look at the trio.

"I'm blessed if I know; I only met them once. We've got a lot of new men, and I can't tell one from the other yet.

The funny part of it was none of the old players could help the manager out, so the camera man had to ask the three men for their names.

The squad is long on pitchers, and this fact was commented upon by Tannehill. "Gee whiz, I don't know what will become of us old-timers," said Jess. "I guess we will have to get a move on. Uncle Cy and I were talking it over to-day, and we decided that we would have to show the young fellows a thing or two this season."

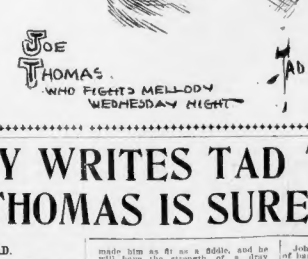
Cy winked suggestively and felt of his mighty right arm. Uncle Cy, by the way, decided not to go to Hot Springs. He says that as soon as the Pittsburg players, who have a monopoly of the ball grounds, arrive at the Springs there isn't much chance for an outsider to get in the right kind of practice. He says he doesn't need the benefit of the Springs, and is willing to wager that he can get along without them.

George Winter stayed on the train and kept on to Hot Springs, however. In a few days there will be three Boston pitchers there, Winter, Dineen and Harris. Freeman is also there, but it is doubtful if Criger will go, as he is getting in trim coaching the Notre Dame candidates at South Bend, Ind.

Like May Weather for Start of Practice.

The club has given him the privilege of doing just as he likes in the matter of getting himself in condition. I forgot to mention that Rafiing, the Texas pitcher, joined the squad at St. Louis. He is said to be a good one, but you can never tell. Collins wired President Taylor that he had some important business interests in Buffalo which require his attention for a few days, but said he would start for Little Rock Tuesday, and ought to be here by Thursday morning. Shaw, the Louisville catcher, has not arrived, owing to a misunderstanding about his contract. Mr. Taylor wired him to come on at once, as the terms were satisfactory and a contract could be signed here. Fred Lake is going to Hot Springs for about ten days to get himself into condition. He was to have started last night, but President Kavanaugh, of the Little Rock club, asked him to remain here a few days, as he was out with the Boston players this morning. Judge Kavanaugh called on the newspaper men at the Hotel Marion yesterday, and put them all up at the best club in town. The Judge, who is also president of the Southern League, is a baseball fan of the first water, and is greatly interested in the Boston delegation.

The weather was like a May day in Boston when the "Chicklets" arrived. Even light overcoats were not needed. All hands were out breathing copious draughts of ozone most of the day. They were all itching to get on the ball field, and could hardly wait for the special car to arrive in front of the hotel.



FOLEY WRITES TAD THAT THOMAS IS SURE TO WIN

BY TAD.

When Joe Thomas challenged either Tommy Ryan or Hugo Kelley to battle for the middleweight honors, sports thought that the young Californian had outgrown the welterweight limit and was going in the next class. Harry Foley, however, smashed all these dreams by posting $500 and offering to fight Honey Mellody at 142 pounds.

The boys will meet at 145 pounds, however, and the $500 is up at that figure as a forfeit. Foley is the most confident fellow as regards weight that ever wrote a letter. He is sure that Thomas will make the stipulated weight, and in the shape of the following letter is from Foley, who is at present lounging his chorus into shape:

What Foley Thinks of It.

Philadelphia, March 2, 1907.

Dear Tad—Well, the big fight is on and we are suited to a T. We are in trim now and we will come in under the wire pulling on.

We fight with five-ounce gloves (contestant to use his own gloves if he wishes. We will use Sol Levitsohn's famous make, Marquis of Queensberry rules, protect yourself at all times. Weight 145 pounds at 2 p. m. on day of contest, $500 forfeit to be placed in the hands of T. G. Mullen, Hotel Scott. Soft bandages.

Everything in the articles is agreeable to us, and Joe will have no trouble at all with the weight, as he has but eight pounds to take off. A few good runs and a little inside work made him as fit as a fiddle, and he will have the strength of a dray horse.

In the last contest, which took place September 3, 1906, Joe defeated Mellody in eleven rounds, and at no stage was he tired or in danger. He used a straight left and occasionally crossed with his right, jolting the Boston boy from his heels to the top of his head.

Thomas didn't really start to fight until he had Mellody sized up pretty well, and after the sixth he went at him and it looked like a clinch. In the eighth round he dropped Mellody to the floor. Again in the tenth he put him down, and in the eleventh, after flooring him three times, he was declared the winner.

Honey Wasn't in Shape.

After the contest Mellody claimed that he was not in shape and that he had done very little training, thinking that Thomas was a mark. Well, if he was not right at that time I hope he will be this time, as Thomas will have no excuse, and we want Mellody in the best of condition. Don't let anyone bull you about that weight business, for Joe can do it handily, and will be great. He weighed 148 pounds the night he fought Al Kaufman, and I'll bank my roll that he is O. K. this time. I have been with Joe (Selsey), Mellody, Ryan, Nelson, Spider Kelly and Billy Delaney and learned from them when just what condition means. Thomas will be on the scales at 145 pounds and make it easy. Yours truly,

HARRY FOLEY.

John L. Sullivan says that in the days of bare knuckle fights a man took as much care of his face and hands as the average man does of his teeth now.

"A man would have his face cut very easily then," said the big fellow, "and as we were forced to pickle our hands for a week or so before the fight, you can just about judge how hard a man's hand was. Why, I used to have the flesh rubbed off my face until you'd think I was a consumptive. A cut might almost lose a fight for you, and to have the flesh very thin over the cheek bones was the trick. Nowadays, with those big gloves, a man hasn't half the trouble."

Honey Mellody met "Elbows" McFadden a few days ago when he was here visiting, and the McFadden person started talking fight as soon as they had shaken hands.

"I'm only a lightweight," piped Mac. "But I'm willing to give away a few pounds and fight any welterweight in the world. That's going some, isn't it?"

"Why don't you stretch 117 sized Mellody. "And make it 116 pounds! You might get O'Brien then."

Elbows didn't get it for at least five minutes, and then Honey saw him over in a corner laughing as though his heart would break.

You can't beat some of these rummies who send in queries. Here's a wonder:

Coney Island, 1907.

Dear Sir:

Would you please oblige and answer this question, as we are all AMERICAN readers:

If a bag should weigh fifty pounds and another bag weigh twice as much, how much would it weigh? Yours,

E. GOTHINGE.

BAT NELSON WILLING TO ARRANGE BOUT WITH GANS ON FAIR TERMS

NEW YORK, March 4.—Battling Nelson of Hegewisch, Ill., president of the Battling Nelson Mining Company of Reno, Nev., has arrived from Europe. With his distinguished citizen was Billy Nolan, who looks after Mr. Nelson's ring affairs. The trayellers from Europe remained at once to the Cadillac Hotel, and in this famous White Way hostelry they entertained friends until 5 a. m. of the first day of the week.

In order to get business out of the way at once, the restless Mr. Nolan remarked: "I want to fight Gans again. We will only bother you long enough to once, 132 pounds three or four hours before the contest. We will fight him with bare fists and put the purse any businesslike way that suits him.

"We know that the Gans-Nelson fight is the only big drawing card in sight, and that Gans is not in a financial position to let it go by.

"We will stay here two or three days and then go down to Goldfield to give Bat a chance to boil out and take a good rest. He has seen too many people, and we are going where morals are scarce. When the rest cure is over he will be ready to talk business with Gans and the fight promoters.

Wouldn't Be a "Scab."

Then Nelson broke loose and entertained the crowd with his experiences in London, Paris and other places. Nelson was congratulated for standing by the striking muscle hall artists in London.

"That was only natural," said Nelson. "No real man would be a scab." He lost ten weeks at $1,000 a week, but got a good part of it back by going at once to the provinces, as every place outside of London is called, and filling engagements.

The theatrical trust was hot after us, but in Nolan: "and at one time we thought of vanishing and coming back incognito in the hole of a steamer as stokers."

Nelson says that every time you are matched with a little English dancer's" and one of their party, either the admirer of a pretty girl that Nelson wore on the lapel of his coat.

The durable Dane became the color of a blue gill fish, and expressed wonder that such a story should have got over here.

"Why, one Miss De la Rose, we didn't you follow her from Manchester to Dublin?" asked a nightowl.

"Yes, yes; it's all right," she's an average forty-one," said the Dane, "and only seventeen years old. You will see her here some day, too, for her troupe is coming over."

Nolan watched his protege closely for a minute and then muttered:

"The girls in Milwaukee needn't worry, for the one in Hegewisch, either!

"Say, we ran away from Johnny Summers, the London fighter," said Nolan to Tad. "It's true, we don't get him to come to America. But he is tied up with the National Sporting Club and is making too much money right along to take a chance with us. He is the idol of London."

Fooled London Scribes.

Then Nolan took a crack at the London papers.

"Why, we couldn't even see the sporting editors until after we had cards printed," said Nolan. "After that we made them fall for columns. Most of their writers are real innocent. We told one that Nelson could whip best Jack O'Brien, and that we would sign him any day. But had a description of the National Sporting Club when a bootlegger told him only 'Soft' could get in. But though he meant toughs, between us, the club is not as swell as it used to be.

"In Paris Bat made a mistake that bumiliated him. It was in the Paris Casino. Bat yelled: 'Hey, Ike, bring us some food, for I am dying.' Jones still standing in the aisle, 'The stranger simply walked away. Then we learned it was Adolph Rosenthal. We sent over an apology, and Adolph invited us to table. When taking in the person he took on a manicure and adjusted it to his own liking. Bat says he had found that thing on I wouldn't have made the mistake."

Nelson appeared quite fat, and, barring the cold that gave him a husky tone, he looked in good shape.

Special to the Boston American.
HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 4.—Arm and Hammer Club of the Boston American team are making excellent progress and are loud in their praise of Hot Springs as a batting place. They are both taking the baths daily and attribute their rapid improvement to benefits thus received.
Mike Reagan of Boston will join the team at Little Rock Tuesday, and after several days they will return here remaining until the pitchers leave. Billy Dineen says he never felt better in his life, but will not neglect his practice work. He was out early this morning and worked hard all day.

GETTING READY FOR HUB'S AUTO SHOW

BY J. C. KERRISON.

Judging by the hustling that is now going on about the interior of the new automobile and power boat show which opens Saturday night in Mechanics building and Horticultural Hall is written it will tell a story of success hitherto unsurpassed in the matter of exhibitions. Boston generally takes the lead in many things, and this fact has now been universally recognized throughout the country. Manufacturers all over the West are doing everything possible to help make the show a success.

The fitting out of the spaces in Mechanics and Horticultural Halls began this morning. This means a lot of work for nothing can be done until the various spaces have been ruled off. It will take a large force of men working quickly several days to get it on the beds of flat gang will follow the carpenters. To them will come the work of placing the railings and arranging everything for the placing of cars. Then decorators will then have their innings. All the little designs that are to be placed in the show are now on the way, and will be ready to go in Wednesday. The samples of the decorative scheme shown that it will be much prettier than in year ago. That is saying a great deal for the decorations of last March were very attractive than had been seen at any of the other shows.

It is expected that everything will be in readiness by Friday to allow the exhibitors to begin placing their cars in the hall. This will be a gigantic task, but as there will be a lot of help on hand there will be no delays. When the show is thrown open next Saturday night there will not be a blank space. The exhibitors have been notified that they must have everything in place by Saturday noon.

Power Boat Men Busy.

The power boat men have been getting things in shape in their shops for the part they are to take in the show. In the basement Mechanics' Hall during show week is always found a group of people interested in motor boats. The best models from the well-known designers and builders will be on hand and everything from a racing motor boat to a big cruiser will be seen. With the building of such things as the new Charles River dam and the purchasing of Summer homes on inland rivers and lakes the use of a motor boat for convenience and pleasure has become widely prevalent. When one was seen a few years ago there are dozens now and the demand is rapidly increasing. While there are not many changes in hull and designs the engines are being made simpler each year so that anyone may run one now. At the show in addition to the complete boats there will be many engines shown that may be put into any kind of a boat.

Albert L. Pope, the recently elected president of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, has been discussing the 1907 Vanderbilt cup race as follows: "The subject of another Vanderbilt cup race is of widespread interest, not only throughout the United States, but across the Atlantic. A good many inquiries are being made concerning the details of this event, and I have not the slightest objection to expressing myself to the effect that we expect to enter several cars in the race. I do not feel that it is not an essential feature to fix a maximum limit of horsepower in the contesting machines, although we do believe in the proposed French system of rating as outside limit of weight.

"The season of the year has been more or less discussed, but we are inclined to the opinion that October furnishes the best environment and weather conditions to run this contest, and it is known of no better place in America than the new automobile speedway on Long Island, provided that it is completed in season. Otherwise, any course similar to the one formerly used on Long Island, which would cover a distance of approximately 300 miles, seems most advisable. Long Island is particularly well located and its topography well suited to the general conditions required in a fair automobile contest of this kind. We are strong believers in the efficiency of having American machines driven by American born citizens, and we would like to see the next Vanderbilt cup race run under approximately these conditions, with the addition of such other details and arrangements as are found necessary to the proper regulation and safeguarding of the contest."

SOCCERS ELECT OFFICERS AND PLAN SCHEDULE

A meeting of the Massachusetts Football Association was held yesterday afternoon at the Continental Hotel, this city, with the president, J. H. Fairbanks, in the chair. The meeting elected these officers: Financial secretary, Dan McGuire, Andover; A. F. C.; referee committee, J. Smith, Hopedale Rovers, and Wes-President Angus McCameron; cup tie committee, J. Hurley, Brockton; R. Nelson, Lowell Olympics; J. Smith, Hopedale Rovers, James Smith, Holyoke, William Taylor, Fore River, W. Mellins, Everett, and J. Campbell, Gregors.

March 17 will be the last day for the forwarding of the affiliation to the association, and on that date the next meeting of the association will take place and the various committee will proceed to make out the association's playing schedule. Only members of A. F. C. were admitted to membership with the association.

TITUS TO COACH TIGERS.

PRINCETON, March 4.—Constance S. Titus, chairman of the boat committee, has been appointed rowing coach at Princeton, and will assume his duties as soon as the ice is off the lake.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS TOLD IN BRIEF

GENERAL.

With only two weeks remaining in the series, the race in the Amateur Boston Pin League is practically ended and the B. A. A. is certain of first honors, while the other clubs are waging an interesting fight for second place. The Cambridge Winthrop Y.M.C.A. dropped four points last week, and is now in third position, while Harvard, the team that gave the Cantabs such a hard fight for the championship last year, has climbed up to fourth place and the contest for fifth place and the other positions will determine which clubs will secure the places. The relegation of the three clubs in the Inter-Amateur and Gill Edge leagues to the last month of the season has caused a great deal of rivalry, as the late competitors recovered from their bad slumps and the games are now drawing the attention of the fans.

With Bruns unable to play, Harvard has little hope of defeating the fast Dartmouth team on Cambridge tonight. Dartmouth has one of the fastest five in the country, while Harvard is considered a second-rate team and on easy victory is expected by the New Hampshire team, tonight. While it is admitted that the Crimson have a strong team, it is not considered in the class with Dartmouth for this season, since Bruns is far more superior to the New Yorkers, and the fact that Cushing dropped off his game and was a star Saturday indicates that Dartmouth will have an easy task tonight.

The report to the effect that Charlie Caddy would wear his customary suit when he came out to accept a position as athletic instructor at Cornell University has caused a great deal of talk around Boston. It was generally supposed that Somerville High Caddy stated undertake that he expected to officiate in the Cornell-Penn game next week, which indicates that he will direct the work of athletics for some time.

A special meeting of the Boston Intercollegiate Rowing Association will be held at the B. A. A. tonight to consider the possibility of continuing rowing races on the Charles river basin next year. The meeting was called by Secretary Ralph Bingham, because of the failure to secure locations for boathouses, but as the Cambridge colleges are in favor a location on the Cambridge side of the Charles River there is every reason to believe it likely that the boys will not be deprived of their favorite sport.

BOXING.

Eddie Keyes of Newburyport comes out with a defi to meet any 116-pound boy in New England, Louis or Young Cahill preferred.

If reports from the prize ring are true, Jeffries, the big heavyweight, and Al Kaufman of San Francisco, are to be pitted against each other. Jeffries would be in fine company yet, for he is a very formidable opponent.

Another Indian pitcher has entered the baseball world. Frank Bruce, a Sioux, has had his name signed to a contract by Manager Selee of the Boston Nationals. Bruce is said to be a speedy one and has been pitching for a number of years. He is a graduate of Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kan., and has been coached by Dan Dougherty, Jack Chesbro and Harry Smith, Boston's new backstop. Bruce is also a member of the Haskell Institute football team.

Jack Dempsey, the middleweight champion, and Harry Lewis, the lightweight champion, have been matched to box 20 rounds at Philadelphia on March 18. Dempsey has always accepted and has come out a winner in every bout he has had in Philadelphia, while Lewis has always declined, and the only time he has appeared in that city he was defeated by Young Peter Jackson.

BASEBALL.

Carlos Nig Clarke of the Cleveland's says that Hess is the hardest man to handle in the American League. He says that Hess has a fast ball that has speed that any man in the league, and that his curve ball has the best break he ever saw.

"Scoops" Carey will pick them up again as fast as he drops them, if Manager Selee of the Nationals is in his company yet, for he is a very clever fielder.

Jack Coffey, who has entered the baseball field, has been signed to play with the Philadelphia Nationals. Coffey is said to be a fast fielder and a hard hitter. He is 22 years old and has played baseball for several years. Coffey is a graduate of Holy Cross College.

Manager Selee of the Boston Nationals has offered an offer which was immediately accepted. Fred Tenney, the star first baseman of the team, has been signed to manage the team for the season of 1907. Tenney has been with the team for several years and has played in every game for the past two years. Selee's terms while with the Nationals were that he was not to manage the team, but this year he will be given full charge of the team.

The position of third base on the St. Louis Browns has been vacated by Dougherty and Harry Niles is slated for second base, while Monte Beville will play in centre field. Jimmy Austin, Cunningham is very enthusiastic over Pitcher Fullerton, and thinks he can make a far better showing than he did last season.

It is said that Garry Herrmann has spent $250,000 since he got into baseball. That's paying dearly for practical jokes and champagne.

Fighting the Piano Trust

The name "Piano Trust" sounds powerful and grand. But what good piano ever came to suit the price of a "trust" instrument? We have been cutting their prices and selling cutting machine and actually slaughtering their prices, and we have won the big fight. We've won it for the people. We mention that we are not the winner doing it, but we are still in the fight, and have almost any make of high-grade piano, new or second-hand, at prices that make the big Piano Trust sore.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, MARCH 4, 1907

Some Innocent Questions

Will Our Imperial Administration Answer Them?

It was announced that the Panama Canal was to be dug by the United States government.

A certain Mr. Shonts, friend of Mr. Thomas F. Ryan, was put in charge of the canal.

He did, apparently, what he was put there to do.

AFTERWARD MR. RYAN HIRED HIM AT SEVERAL TIMES HIS GOVERNMENT SALARY TO WORK FOR MR. RYAN.

The members of the interborough were to get 50 per cent of the profits.

Why did Mr. Shonts go into the canal? WHY DID MR. RYAN HIRE HIM?

While Mr. Shonts was in charge of the canal it was decided that the canal was to be built by private contractors and not by the government. Why was that decision reached?

Bids were asked for, and the contracts were drawn in accordance with details provided by Mr. Cravath, the private lawyer of Mr. Thomas FORTUNE Ryan.

WHY DID MR. THOMAS F. RYAN'S PRIVATE LAWYER SUPPLY THE DETAILS FOR FORMULATING PLANS TO BUILD THE PANAMA CANAL ON CONTRACT?

The bids were let, and a certain Mr. Oliver made a very low bid. It was the lowest bid, and of course it had to be accepted—for a few minutes.

BUT IT WASN'T THE BID OF MR. THOMAS F. RYAN.

WHY WAS MR. OLIVER FOOLISH ENOUGH TO IMAGINE THAT HIS LOWEST BID WOULD SECURE FOR HIM THE DIGGING OF THE CANAL?

Mr. Thomas F. Ryan went down to Washington and went to the White House and talked to the President.

WHY DID HE GO THERE?

A short time afterward, Mr. Oliver, the lowest bidder for the canal contract, was informed that he must get very able financial backing to justify giving him the contract.

He GOT the very best and strongest backing: nobody could possibly criticise it.

And then it was announced by the administration at Washington that all of the bids for digging the canal would be rejected, and Mr. Oliver couldn't have his contract.

WHY WAS THIS ANNOUNCEMENT MADE!

Was Mr. Oliver's bid too small? Was Mr. Oliver the wrong man to do the digging? Was Mr. Oliver the man that Mr. Shonts DID NOT have in mind when he arranged for the letting of contracts in accordance with specifications prepared by Thomas F. Ryan's lawyer!

What part is Thomas F. Ryan playing in the government of the United States?

Is he by any chance THE SUCCESSOR TO "DEAR MARIA!"

Have we always got to have a "Dear Maria" running the government of the United States, or some part of it?

Is the ordinary, honest American business man to understand that when government contracts are let he cannot bid with the hope of getting the contract? Is it really a crime against the government to make a reasonable bid, A LOWER BID THAN THE ONE MR. RYAN'S MAN MADE?

Why is this sudden change?

When will new bids be opened so that Ryan can get the contract?

Who is the real President of the United States?

How many other "Dear Marias" are there in America?

Wall Street Gamblers Are Very Careful—FOR THEMSELVES

Why Doesn't the Public Protect ITSELF as the Brokers Protect THEMSELVES?

Henry M. Post, a broker on the New York Stock Exchange, has been suspended—forbidden to earn a living—for six months. This gentleman is temporarily deprived of the pleasant excitement and profit derived from stock gambling, because HE ALLOWED OTHER STOCK BROKERS' CLERKS TO GAMBLE IN HIS OFFICE.

Why is a stockbroker not allowed to carry on the gambling operations of other brokers' clerks? It is because stock gambling changes men into thieves, and the brokers don't want THEIR CLERKS to steal.

The stockbrokers are wise to protect themselves against stock gambling by their employes.

Not long ago a broker's employe stole $40,000 and gambled it away in another broker's office. The broker's office where the gambling was done WAS COMPELLED BY THE STOCK EXCHANGE TO REFUND THE ENTIRE $40,000.

That was just. There is no more reason for letting a broker receive stolen goods than there is for letting a pawnbroker receive stolen goods.

Why should brokers only be able to get back stolen money gambled away in stocks? Why haven't the people brains enough to compel brokers who receive stolen trust funds TO PAY BACK THOSE STOLEN FUNDS?

Isn't it just as important to protect depositors in savings banks, for instance, from the harm of stock gambling as it is to protect a stock gambler's office from loses with a brother gambler?

We recommend to the people of the country a law based on this useful hint from the Stock Exchange in the case of Mr. Post. Compel the publication by Stock Exchange brokers of the names of all men occupying positions of trust, bankers, clerks or others THAT GAMBLE IN STOCKS. Let bank depositors and employers know what is being done with their money.

And pass a law compelling brokers who take stolen money to do so at their own risk. Make THEM refund stolen property the same as the pawnbrokers do. Why should a stockbroker, however respectable, be allowed to run a "fence" where trust funds are accepted without question, and trusted employes or bank officials encouraged in what means inevitable thievery?

The Other Man's Job

By William F. Kirk

IT'S pretty soft for the motorman—he rides the whole day long,
With nothing to do but start the car and tap a warning gong.
The rest of us have to pay five cents whenever we want to ride;
Lacking the fare, we must use Shank's mare when we do our homeward glide.

IT'S pretty soft for the doctor, who deals in human ills.
Though at 2 a. m. he must leave his bed, armed with a box of pills.
At times he must face the wintry wind that stingeth like a knout,
But the rest of us have to take the dope the doctor dishes out.

IT'S pretty soft for the lawyer, who labors over his brief,
And prays to the court that his client be granted said relief.
He must read a thousand volumes, all bound in musty calf,
But the rest of us, when we break our legs, must give the lawyer half.

IT'S pretty soft for the hod carrier—he fills his hod with brick,
And totes it up the ladder—it's easy to learn the trick.
He climbs to the top of the building, where all is mortar and muss,
But most of the bricks get bounced and fall on the rest of us.

Let us gaily wander the table, while our hearts with envy throb,
And drink a toast to the easiest task—The Other Fellow's Job!

MONDAY—Panama not such a bad place. Iced beer tastes cooler here than in any other place I've been. Have the situation all doped out, and will have active construction work under way in a couple of weeks. Telegram from Washington to-night asking for report—favorable—on Chinese labor.

TUESDAY—Telegram from Washington this morning asking for report—favorable—on sanitary conditions. Tried to find a golf course, but couldn't.

* * *

WEDNESDAY—Inspected work already done. Took me over ten minutes. Telegram from Washington asking what I mean by giving out interview saying work may take several years. This place is a long way from Peoria.

THURSDAY—Even the ice here tastes warm and mushy. Telegram from Washington suggesting I dig the canal with Aztec labor. Got sore and replied: "Ship me 50,000 silver spoons and the same number of pink tea drinkers, and will complete work in 250 years."

* * *

FRIDAY—Telegram from Washington this morning saying spoons had been shipped and ordering return of steam shovels. Unpleasant place this. Not a good vaudeville show on the isthmus.

SATURDAY—Four secretaries and seven assistant secretaries arrived to-day to inspect work. Showed them around after breakfast and before dinner. Secretary of Peace promised to recommend placing of an electric fan on every palm tree to cool laborers. Wish there was a golf course here.

MONDAY—Cable repaired to-day. Bunch of delayed messages from Washington. Want to know why I don't write more for the magazines and pay less attention to mere construction work. Dashed off two articles to-day for the Cycle Magazine—"Panama as a Sanitarium" and "Panama, the Two-Edged Mystery of the Western Hemisphere." Swallowed a golf ball.

TUESDAY—Wretched place this. Telegram from Washington asking why not write article on "Panama as Paradise." Replied, "I quit."

* * *

WEDNESDAY—Sail for home and golf to-morrow. Friend cabled extract from Washington interview, in which I am described as "inventive, malicious, inveterate, ingenious, deliberate, unqualified liar." Never mind—home this week.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox

She Warns Business Women Not to Waste Time in Useless Talk, but to Be Concise and Direct

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner.

WOMEN are determined to enter the avenues of business, and the tendency of the times is to force them there, whether they will or no.

Before real continued success can come to a woman in any self-supporting realm she must have several things of which she seems unconscious today.

I fear it is the exceptional business woman who has a realization of the necessity of paying her bills promptly and of having her word as good as her note in money matters.

I shall never forget the mortification I felt for my sex once upon a time, when, in a strange place, away from home, I gave the name of a well-known business woman as reference in a financial matter. I knew her as a most ambitious and seemingly successful business woman, and was astonished to be told that her note was not considered of any value, and that in her own town she could not obtain credit because it was so difficult to collect bills when due.

Afterward I heard the woman bemoan the cruelty of the world toward a woman who tried to make her own way.

Of course, our sex has not been accustomed to assume large responsibilities, and it is difficult to grasp the situation at once. We have been for centuries the recipients of the gallant attentions or tyrannical espionage of men, and to become their associates in business is quite another matter.

But since woman has entered upon this field let her keep her shield bright and her sword sharp and her sense of honor keen.

Make Words Brief

ANOTHER point to be observed is the necessity to epitomize her ideas and curtail her words in business conversation. One of woman's greatest hindrances to success is her loquaciousness.

The woman who places any value on the worth of her own time or that of another and displays it by economizing both, is worthy of a gold medal, so unusual a specimen is she.

Every word we utter means an expenditure of a certain amount of vital force; yet women waste this force as recklessly as if it were dross instead of pure gold.

They talk above, below and around the point at issue, using ten phrases to express what could be better said in one.

Woman's conception of the importance and value of time is conveyed in a smiling, "I know you are awfully busy, and I fear I am trespassing upon your time," while she immediately proceeds to talk for another half hour upon something which has nothing to do with the purpose of her call.

In social life the woman who flits from topic to topic like a butterfly from flower to flower is delightful. She rests, entertains, amuses and often instructs her listeners.

The woman who is too serious and one-sided in social life is worse, if anything, than the one who is too profuse and diffusive in business.

This seems to be the point which she finds difficult to realize.

It is the exceptional man who goes into a busy office or study and takes half an hour to do his errand.

It is the exceptional woman who takes less.

With all woman's desire to be unselfish, and, despite the foundation of unselfishness upon which her nature is built, she is thoughtless and inconsiderate by her wasteful verbosity, as a rule, in business matters.

Rare Exception

THE woman who is direct, concise, and expeditious in her methods is as unusual as a white blackbird.

She seldom lacks employment. This quality of dispatch is one of the fundamental laws of success, and nothing reaches a man's business heart sooner than a delicate consideration of the great value of his time and an indication that your own, as well, is worth conserving.

To every woman or girl who is about to seek influence, advice or a position, I offer this counsel:

Before you set forth on your errand think out clearly what you want.

Then think of a few concise sentences by which you may express your wish.

Keep to your point. Do not tell the story of your life or describe your genealogical descent from William the Conqueror to the man you hope will give you employment.

Talk about the subject which called you into his presence, and talk with directness and fluency, and get done with it and go away.

If you do not win the man's patronage you will at least win his respect and gratitude.

And you will have saved your own time and nerve force for other occasions.

Silence is the best resolve for him who distrusts himself.—LA ROCHEFOUCAULD.
